PRESBYTERIANS AND LOCAL OPTION

SPEAKER AT SYNOD SCORES THE CHURCH

Address of W. J. Farris Calls Forth Protests From Ministers

Vancouver, May 6.—"I feel ashamed of the attitude of the Presbyterian church with regard to the cause of temperance," said W. J. Farris, speaking on behalf of the Local Option League before the Presbyterian Synod of British Columbia yesterday afternoon.

"In the reports of the church work to which I have listened," said Mr. Farris, "the matter has been barely mentioned, and in the report of the Sunday school committee no reference whatever has been made to this important branch of work. When I think of the crime of intemperance, and the degradation caused by intemperance I feel it a shame that nothing is being done."

At this point Rev. Dr. McRae of Victoria, and Rev. R. J. Wilson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, both sprang to their feet. Dr. McRae declared that Mr. Farris was abusing the hospitality of the synod, while Mr. Wilson followed with the statement that he personally drew a distinction between the Local Option League and the local option movement, and indicated that in his opinion the criticisms of the speaker were uncalled for.

The interruptions were brief and Mr. Farris continued his address, calling the attention to his criticism to the fact that the church knew what local option meant to the province of British Columbia; they also knew the difficulties which the league had to face. He was aware that the methods of the league had been criticized, but that this ought not to prejudice the ministers against it, if they considered to how much criticism they themselves were scheduled.

The churches were aware, said Mr. Farris, that the main obstacle to their work was the liquor traffic. If the churches would give their support to the Local Option League that organization would show immediate progress. They should cease their petty carping criticism of the man at the head of the movement, he declared, and give it their support until they could prove that there was some other man better fitted to do the work.

Mr. Farris withdrew nothing of his initial statement and closed with a declaration that the attitude of the ministers as well of the church membership was inimical to the cause of temperance. If the Moderator should declare that he had said anything improper he said he was willing to apologize.

Rev. R. J. Wilson then made the declaration that the Local Option League had suffered more at the hands of its friends than from the lukewarm support of the church.

"It is for this reason," said Mr. Wilson, "that I do not and will not under present conditions become a member of the Local Option League, and in saying this I mean no disrespect to faithfulness or the enthusiasm of Mr. Farris."

Rev. Dr. McRae expressed his willingness to apologize should the moderator so desire. He wished to clear his personal and his ministerial character from the imputation that he had neglected to support this or any other movement in the cause of temperance. Dr. McRae declared emphatically that on this subject the church in British Columbia was by no means lukewarm.

Rev. Mr. Kerr, of Prince Rupert, expressed his regret that the representative of the Local Option League had not been allowed to deliver his address without interruption. Mr. Farris, he said, was not a paid official of the league, and had spoken with warmth and earnestness merely because of his heartfelt interest in the cause of temperance. He agreed with Mr. Farris that the church was failing to cope with one of its greatest problems. What they had to fight, said Mr. Kerr, was a government which was banded together with the liquor interests.

Rev. E. A. Henry, of Chalmers Presbyterian church, stated his belief that the provincial government should be asked to grant some form of local veto measure, instead of compelling them to work under the Canada Temperance act.

Rev. J. A. Logan, clerk of the synod, stated that the opinion of the synod on the temperance question had already been expressed. The question of local option was another matter. In his opinion Mr. Farris could not be said to have made a report to them upon local option, nor had he asked that the synod express an opinion upon the matter.

A motion was passed thinking Mr. Farris for his address and the matter was left over for further discussion in the report on temperance and moral reform.

The moderator, Rev. J. B. Henderson, in tendering the thanks of the synod to Mr. Farris, made the statement that "the liquor interest has got its hands on the throat of everything."

FRENCH TROOPS ARRIVE AT FEZ

REBELS STILL HOLD THE UPPER HAND

Sultan Unable to Leave Capital—Many Tribesmen Joining Rebel Chiefs

Fez, Morocco, April 30.—(By courier to Tangier, May 6.)—The arrival of Captain Bregon's column has not changed the situation. The investment of the capital continues.

The rebel horsemen who are beyond the reach of artillerymen, have cut off the food supplies. The Sultan's troops are worn out with the constant skirmishing and watchfulness.

The rebel chiefs have a growing moral advantage now, as all Morocco knows that the Sultan is penned up in the capital and that his loyal troops are unable to move within range with their artillery.

The rebels are still holding the upper hand. Tribes half loyal are joining the rebellion through fear that the villages of those refusing will be raided.

The arrival of the French expedition will secure the entry of provisions, the safety of the capital, but the present outlook is confused and uncertain. Ammunition scarce.

Paris, May 6.—At a cabinet council to-day Jean Cruppi, minister of foreign affairs, read a dispatch from Henri Callaud, the French consul at Fez, dated April 30, and forwarded by way of Tangier.

The consul stated that the blockade of the city was complete and the ammunition of artillery defending the capital had been greatly reduced. Food was selling at extraordinary high prices.

FRENCH AVIATOR FALLS TO DEATH

Killed While Giving Exhibition Flights in Biplane at Shanghai

Shanghai, May 6.—Rene Vallon, the French aviator, fell from a great height to-day and was instantly killed. Vallon belonged to Paris and had been giving exhibitions in this country for six weeks in the hope of interesting the Chinese government in military aviation. He made his first extended flight as an aviator in China, using a summer bi-plane.

SUMMER RESORT.

Toronto, May 6.—The Canadian Northern railway has purchased a section of land facing Silver Lake, just west of Red Deer, Alb., on which to establish a summer resort. The company will erect a large hotel there. Silver Lake is on the Stettin-Brace line of C. N. R., now under construction. The property was purchased from a retired banker of Belgium, who settled there five years ago, buying the land at $1 acre. The C. N. R. paid him $100 an acre.

RAILWAY FIREMAN DROWNED.

(Special to the Times.)
Moose Jaw, May 6.—Moose Jaw river claimed its first victim of the season yesterday when a canoe carrying three young men overturned half a mile west of the town, Harry Hewitt, C. P. R. fireman, being drowned. The police recovered the body forty minutes later.

STEAMSHIP COMPANY LODGES PROTEST

Governor of Alaska Receives Message Regarding Situation at Cordova

Chaplain, Conn., May 6.—Governor Walter E. Clark, of Alaska, who is visiting his old home here, to-day received a telegram from the mayor of Cordova and Commissioner Tucker, giving an account of the "coal party" at Cordova, as already described in the Associated Press dispatches and fully confirming the latter. Governor Clark said the message also contained a protest of the steamship company against the throwing overboard of the coal and the riotous demonstration made. Governor Clark said:

"It is a pity that the coal was thrown overboard; it will be needed for fuel. We all have to use Canadian coal until a plan is put into operation for opening our own coal mines."

"The demonstration has called attention to the necessity of early action. The secretary of the Interior is fully in sympathy with the needs of the people of Alaska. We must be patient a little longer."

AN IDEA FOR THE CITY COUNCIL

Instead of the Mayor and Aldermen barring the doors upon themselves when conducting the business of the public, they should boldly declare for the "open door" and charge an admission fee to their exhibitions of prowess and other things.

APPLICATION TO BE MADE FOR BAIL

JOHN McNAMARA'S CASE SET FOR TUESDAY

June 1 Fixed as Time for Two Alleged Dynamiters
to Plead

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—No further official act of consequence is scheduled in the cases of John J. McNamara and his brother James B. McNamara, arraigned yesterday on charges of murder and dynamiting, with June 1 fixed as the time for them to plead, until next Tuesday. Judge Walter Bordwell then will confer with both the prosecution and the defence regarding the question of bail, in case it should decide to grant it to John McNamara on the charge of dynamiting the Jewell Iron Works, which is a bailable offence.

The district attorney has already declared that as the man also is accused of murder the question of his being released on bail cannot be considered seriously, but Leo M. Rappaport, attorney for the defence, would like to have the amount officially fixed anyway.

Rappaport left here yesterday presumably for San Francisco to confer with labor leaders there who are said to have placed in his hands evidence which will importantly effect the defence in a favorable manner. There is little prospect for the public hearing details of the mass of testimony taken before the grand jury.

The McNamara brothers, with hands manacled behind them, were brought into court yesterday by Sheriff Hammet and three of his deputies. But for the evident paleness of the prisoners, they seemed in good health and in perfect command of themselves.

Assistant District Attorney Ford asked them if John J. McNamara and James B. McNamara were their true names.

"Yes, sir," answered the brothers almost in unison.

Then Ford informed them that they had been accused by the grand jury of the crimes of murder, and asked if they were represented by counsel.

"We are," the two replied.

Ford then read to them all of the nineteen indictments charging them with the murder of the employees of the Times plant. Accused with the brothers in the indictments were David Caplan, alleged to have been an assistant of James B. McNamara in the explosion, and four others, one a woman, who were known by the names of "John Doe," "Richard Roe," "John Stiles" and "Jane Doe."

LOST FOR FORTY DAYS IN ALASKA

Miners Lose Way in Blizzard and Suffer Terrible Hardships

Nome, Alaska, May 6.—Frank Knapp, Frank McCoy and Frank Escholdt, miners of Deering, were lost forty days in the Kobuk district in a blizzard, much of the time without food.

The party returned yesterday and told a story of terrible suffering. They had eaten the frozen wolf dogs of their teams.

Knapp dragged his partners to safety to his sled.

The Kobuk is north of the Arctic circle, flowing into the Kolzebue Sound.

OSTRICH FARM IN EAST KOOTENAY

Block of Land Has Been Purchased for Purpose Near Wardner

(Special to the Times.)
Nelson, B. C., May 6.—Otto Becker of Hamburg, Germany, has purchased a block of land near Wardner, where he will start an ostrich farm. He has been engaged ostrich farming in Africa and after a thorough investigation of East Kootenay has decided conditions favorable for ostrich raising. Ostrich ranches are successful in California, Arizona, Texas and Florida.

LIBERALS NOMINATED.

(Special to the Times.)
Parry Sound, Ont., May 6.—Parry Sound Liberals last night nominated T. W. Morrison, Callander, for the Commons, and A. E. Radwin, Parry Sound, for the legislature. J. G. Turfitt, M. P., spoke on reciprocity.

SIR J. CARLING IMPROVING.

(Special to the Times.)
London, Ont., May 6.—Sir John Carling, who on Thursday was seized with a fainting spell, spent a restful day yesterday according to his physicians, and is in no immediate danger.

ALASKAN AVIATOR.

Nome, Alaska, May 6.—Henry Peterson, a Nome musician, will attempt a flight here on Monday in a home-made bi-plane.

INFORMER'S STORY VIGOROUSLY DENIED

TWO MORE PRISONERS DENOUNCE ABBATEMAGGIO

State's Star Witness is Accused of Manufacturing Evidence

Viterbo, Italy, May 6.—Two of the most interesting Camorristi, charged with the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife, confronted Gennaro Abbatemaggio to-day. They were Luigi Arena and Ciro Vittozzi.

Arena, according to the theory of the state, based on a revelation of Abbatemaggio, had been sent to prison after his betrayal by Cuocolo, who was of-fended because Arena refused to share with him the profits of a robbery. Arena wrote to his fellow-Camorristi, setting forth his grievance and demanding Cuocolo's death. Cuocolo was already under suspicion of committing his activity as a Camorrist with those of a police spy. He had incurred the jealousy of Enrico Alfano, the alleged head of the criminal society, and it was decided to do away with him. The carabinieri claim to have possession of a letter which Arena wrote.

All of this was vigorously denied by Arena, who denounced the informer as a manufacturer of evidence and the paid tool of the carabinieri.

According to the testimony of Abbatemaggio, he had heard Vittozzi, the priest, who is one of the accused, and Alfano, discussing the Cuocolo murder at 10.30 on the morning following the assassinations.

Vittozzi replied that on the day and at the hour mentioned, he was at the cemetery of Poggioreale, of which he was chaplain.

DIES FROM PNEUMONIA.

(Special to the Times.)
Winnipeg, May 6.—J. Somerset Atkins, son of the late Hon. J. C. Atkins, former lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, died of pneumonia last evening. He had been a resident of Winnipeg for 39 years, and was actively connected with the General hospital.

SEALING CONFERENCE.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—President Taft to-day designated Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and Chandler E. Anderson, counselor of the state department, to confer with representatives of Great Britain, Japan and Russia, and to negotiate and sign a treaty for the protection and preservation of seals, sea-otter, and other mammals in the north Pacific ocean.

CHINESE REBELS AGAIN ACTIVE

THREATENING CITY NORTH OF HONGKONG

Europeans Seek Safety in Flight—Troops Sent to Intercept Revolutionists

Hongkong, May 6.—Revolutionaries yesterday compelled a Chinese engineer on a railroad running from Sam Shui to Ping Fu, on the Chinese section of the Canton-Kowloon railway, to run his engine and cars to Shek Lung, 20 miles away. Crowds of revolutionists with arms and ammunition went on board the train. They are concentrating in Shek Lung.

Europeans left the town several days ago. One hundred and fifty revolutionists have arrived in Canton from Saigon.

Troops Dispatched.

Canton, May 6.—The revolutionaries are threatening Shek Lung, on the east river, fifty-seven miles north of Hongkong and forty-five miles east of this city. The authorities have dispatched troops to intercept them.

The above is the first news dispatch received direct from Canton since the revolutionary outbreak on the night of April 27. It tends to confirm last night's advices from Hongkong which reported the rebels in greater strength in the district to the east of Canton and north of Hongkong than has appeared from earlier reports.

The report last night that 150 revolutionaries from Saigon had arrived at Canton is erroneous. It is much more likely that the revolutionaries arrived at Hongkong, which has direct communication with Saigon by line of French steamers.

ALBERTA FARMERS WELCOME RAIN

Crop Conditions Favorable— Seeding Over in Southern Part of Province

(Special to the Times.)

Calgary, May 6.—Heavy rain started early this morning and continued all the forenoon. Farmers were just beginning to think that it was about time for a little moisture and their wishes are amply met. Crop conditions have been most favorable this spring. Seeding is now practically in throughout the southern portion of the province and the outlook was never better at this time of the year. Rain is general all over southern Alberta. In many places rain having started in early in the evening and kept up without cessation during the entire night and this morning.

ART DIRECTOR DEAD.

London, May 6.—Halsey Cooley Ives, director of the City Art Museum of St. Louis and widely known in the world of art, died during the night, following a stroke of apoplexy yesterday.

GOING TO EUROPE.

New York, May 6.—The rush of Americans for the coronation is on in earnest. At the North German Lloyd pier in Hoboken, Thursday, there were 2,000 passengers for the steamship George Washington.

TRADE AGREEMENT AND ARBITRATION

Views of London Press on U. S. Negotiations With Canada and Britain

(Special to the Times.)

London, May 6.—The Nation says it is President Taft's cue to present arbitration with Great Britain and reciprocity with Canada as two aspects of the same thing. The development of this argument has given severe pain to our tariff reformers.

The Saturday Review says if Imperial preference were safe, Canada would perhaps feel freer for reciprocity elsewhere. Arrangements with other countries could be made without reference to Canada's loyalty.

The Outlook says that cross-Colden-tem is alone to blame for the fact that the great North American divisions are on the threshold of commercial, to be followed by political fusion. We cannot expect the Imperial sentiment of Canadians to be proof against her material interests.

CONTRACT AWARDED; PROTEST IGNORED

NO CONSIDERATION FOR LABOR INTEREST

Letter of Protest Remained Unread Until the Contract Was Awarded

By a simple transposition of business the city council of Victoria, in its Friday night role of board of works, last night awarded the paving-contract to the Canadian Mineral Rubber Company before a communication from the Trades and Labor Council, protesting against the award and urging the council to reconsider its position in regard to it, was read, with the inevitable result that when the communication was read it could not be considered, as its request had already been definitely negatived by the awarding of the contract. Whether this action represented forethought or accident it is impossible to say, but the view of the Trades and Labor Council concerning it is not complimentary to the city fathers.

The city solicitor, who first objected to the contract on the ground of policy, and who doubted its legality on certain points, submitted a report to the council showing how the difficulties would be overcome. The draft contract covered all the points involving legal intricacies, and met with the approval of the board. H. A. Macdon, solicitor for the paving company, was present to look after their interests.

After the contract had been read by the city solicitor it was agreed to recommend its adoption to the city council so that the protest of the Trades and Labor Council was so much waste paper when its turn for consideration arrived a few minutes later. The protest was in the following terms:

"At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor council a committee was appointed to make certain representations to you before awarding the contract for street paving to the Canadian Mineral Rubber company. Owing to press of business we understand you will not be able to meet with us this evening and the only course left is by communication. The Trades and Labor council, representing the various crafts, protests against this award on the ground that it eliminates competition and creates a monopoly. While the council might feel justified in effecting a saving now of some twenty odd thousand dollars the assuring of competition in future by keeping the competitors divided is lost and will undoubtedly prove more costly in the end."

"Assuming that the council exercises proper supervision over the contractors it cannot be said with credit to the city officials that one company will do better work than another. We believe the ratepayers' interest will not suffer by accepting the lowest tenders on the various sections tendered upon, and in any case it would be far more satisfactory for those employed upon the work to be the privilege of co-operation with more than one firm. We sincerely hope that a reconsideration is made in this matter, and that the principle involved will be recognized by the members of this and future councils."

What would have happened had the communication been read prior to the granting of the contract it is impossible to say. As it happened, it proved a convenient accident for the successful tenderers.

The contract is based on the general lines of such documents, and in the opinion of the city solicitor, safeguards the city's interests fully. Alderman Langley had some doubts about agreeing to a contract he had only just heard read for the first time, but the assurance of the city solicitor dispelled his fears of legal complications.

Particular attention is paid to the fact that a large number of the streets let for contract have not been passed by the city council for local improvement, and must be so passed before they can legally be submitted to the paving contractors. This contingency is provided for, so that everything pertaining to the contract can be implemented.

There are only two changes in the list of eighty-one streets which will be paved by the Canadian Mineral Rubber Company, namely, the two sections of Douglas street from Flanagan to Hildale avenue, which it has since been decided by council to pave with a cement concrete. The company, under the terms of the contract, agrees to pave what streets are passed as they are passed, so that there need be no delay in the execution of the work. The contract also contains the usual penalty clause of twenty-five dollars per day for any delay in the completion of the work.

The contract was signed to-day by the company's representative and will be formally signed and sealed by the council on Monday night.

NEW SHIPYARDS.

Glasgow, May 6.—The Glasgow Herald congratulates Canada on the impending development of her shipping on the eastern seaboard. That was once a great ship building district it says, and with discreet legislation might be made so again.

CHINAMAN'S MONEY STILL MISSING

Merchant Accused of Violating Immigration Act Exonerated at Vancouver

Vancouver, May 6.—A Chinese boy was led into the police court yesterday and faced fifteen grown-up Chinese.

"Is any one of these men the man who told the customs officers he was your father?" the boy was asked.

"No," he said.

Among the grown up Chinese was Gin Man Sing, who was arrested on April 23 on a charge of violating the Chinese Immigration Act. It was alleged that Gin represented himself as the father of the Chinese boy who appeared in the police court and thereby gained $500. The Chinese boy was sent from the east to Vancouver. The father of the boy wrote to Gin asking him to see that the boy landed safely in Canada as a student. Students pay the full head tax of $500, but at the expiration of a year's attendance in the schools of Canada the $500 is refunded. It was alleged that Gin, who is a Vancouver merchant, swore that the boy was his son. As a merchant is entitled to bring a son into Canada free, Gin, it was alleged, profited to the extent of $500, as the money was not returned to the boy's father.

When the boy's school year had expired and the $500 was not refunded, the father notified the federal authorities and Gin's arrest followed.

The father and the boy appeared in the police court yesterday, having made the trip from Chesley, Ontario, and the boy exonerated Gin. Gin Man Sing is the name signed to the oath in the possession of the immigration commissioners that the boy is Gin's son. When the boy failed to identify Gin this morning the charge against Gin was withdrawn and he was dismissed.

G. E. McCrossan, for the prosecution, said that a forgery had been committed. The prosecution says it knows the name of the Chinese who posed as the boy's father and forged the name of Gin Man Sing to the paper in the possession of the immigration commissioners. They say he and others will be arrested. The case has been continued. The boy says Gin Win Sick is the Chinese wanted. The $500 is still missing.

MORE TROUBLE FEARED AT CORDOVA

Alaskans Threaten to Prevent Landing of Coal From Steamer Edith

Cordova, Alaska, May 6.—There was no disorder here yesterday, and none is expected until the arrival of the steamer Edith, which has sailed from Nanaimo with 2,000 tons of Canadian coal for the Alaska Steamship Company, to be landed at Cordova.

Threats were made yesterday by hot-headed persons that the Edith would not be permitted to discharge her cargo. As all foreign coal is under control of the United States customs authorities until it is landed and the duty paid, the deputy collector of customs for Cordova made a demand upon United States Commissioner O. A. Tucker for protection when the Edith arrives, and was assured that an ample force of deputy marshals would be on hand to protect property. It is extremely unlikely that United States officials protecting property would be attacked.

Mayor Austin E. Lathrop of Cordova yesterday received the following dispatch from Governor Walter E. Clark of Alaska, dated Williams, Conn.: "Telegram received. If marshal's and district attorney's offices at Valdez are unable to deal with situation effectively, inform Acting Governor Distin at Juneau of circumstances."

Mayor Lathrop sent the following message to Acting Governor Distin at Juneau: "Serious disturbance account foreign coal on dock Thursday. Believe can handle situation at present. Threats freely indulged in to destroy cargo of Edith now en route. Government must stand ready to protect."

United States Deputy Marshal Brightwell, who has returned from Orca took charge of the situation. He swore in deputies, who are now standing guard on the ocean dock of the Alaska Steamship Company, from which the company's coal was thrown into the bay. It was expected that there would be a score or more of arrests to-day on complaints sworn to by General Freight and Passenger Agent Richard J. Barry, of the steamship company, but he was counselled to wait until the excitement had subsided, and took the advice.

All the dock employees of the Alaska Steamship Company were sworn in as deputy marshals yesterday, and a

THINKING THEMES

BY DR. FRANK CRANE

The root of culture is nothing more nor less than selfishness. The only way to inward Peace is to become indifferent to yourself. To be a philosopher, to view destiny with calm eyes, you do not need to be learned nor old; all you need is to be more interested in the universe and its wonders than you are in yourself and your appetites. The secret of worry is looking out for Number One. You will find, when you let Number One go, that you have established a modus vivendi, and that you are no longer tossed about from passion to repentance, but have discovered a smiling middle-of-the-road in this strange world, and can face death, fame, obscurity, success or failure with equal composure.

Unselfishness is the secret of Good Taste. In rich or poor, educated or ignorant, it is the care and love of self that gives the fatal flavor of vulgarity. Everybody would be polite if everybody were modest. When a woman's robe makes the line of usefulness and becomes a flaunt, when the scholar seeks not to know but to show he knows, when anyone in short, begins to strut, they become offensive. Unselfishness is the gist of Spirituality. There are two rivers of the soul. One flows inward—that is Sin. The other flows outward—that is Goodness. All crimes of the lower order, such as drunkenness, theft, revenge, jealousy and the sins of the flesh, flow toward us. And even the higher emotions, even Religion, when reversed and flowing inward, become wicked, for religion can turn to pride, self-righteousness, bigotry and persecution. All ennobling emotions move out from the soul, as love, loyalty, kindness, charity, worship and the like. Centripetal feelings are bad; centrifugal impulses are good.

When you analyze vulgarity, you discover that "the fly that causeth the ointment to stink" is selfishness. This is the disgusting element in loud talking, self-praise, self-disparagement, jewelry, perfumes, alcohol and pessimism.

large force of guards is kept on duty to prevent further demonstrations. The Copper River and Northwestern Railroad has a force of men sacking the coal that was not dumped into the sea last night, and is shipping it to points of safety in the interior.

It is believed the authorities will have no difficulty in handling the situation when the Edith arrives with a large cargo of British Columbia coal. The Edith is not due here for several days, and the government has plenty of time in which to control the situation.

BIG STEEL WORKS AT SAN FRANCISCO

Nearly Two Millions Involved in Purchase of the Risdon Plant

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—The reported sale of the property of the Risdon Iron and Locomotive Works of San Francisco, to the United States Steel Corporation was confirmed yesterday by the recording of deeds for transfer of Risdon plant. The purchase price was slightly less than $2,000,000. Plans have been completed for the building of a steel plant in San Francisco according to reports of the corporation here, second in magnitude and output only to the plant at Gary, Ind.

Three steel trust units will be consolidated in the works, including branches of the Carnegie Company, the American Bridge Company and the American Steel & Wire Company. Warehouses will be established at Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. The property sold includes 14 city blocks, on which the Risdon plant is located, with one half mile of waterfront.

By the deed the property is conveyed to John Murray, of New Jersey, with permission of A. T. DeForest, representative of the United States Steel Corporation in San Francisco. DeForest was given an option on the plan on March 27.

THRILLING CHILD RESCUE.
Brave Girl Leaps Into Deep Well to Save Drowning Infant.

Carlyle, Sask., May 6.—An act of heroism was performed about eight miles south of Carlyle by Miss Briggs, a nineteen-year-old girl.

While the two young children of A. C. Walker were playing around a well on their father's farm, Eveline, aged three years, overbalanced and fell to the bottom of the well, a distance of 22 feet, into five feet of water. The sister, who is a little older than Eveline, immediately ran toward the house and alarmed Mrs. Walker and Miss Briggs, who hurried to the scene of the accident. No ladders or other means of descent were to be had, and the situation was desperate. Miss Briggs jumped without hesitation into the well and, although keeping her mouth above the level of the water with great difficulty, she managed to support the child, and when eventually a clothes line had been obtained, she fastened it around the child's body, so that Mrs. Walker could draw it up. When at the top, and just as the mother attempted to grasp the child's body, the knots loosened, and the little one plunged to the bottom for the second time. Miss Briggs was up to her ears in the icy water, but, undaunted, she again jumped in, and, assisted by having arrived, Eveline was hauled out of danger, alive, but unconscious. Miss Briggs was later rescued in the same manner.

A great reduction on travelling and motor rugs at J. N. Harvey, Ltd., clearance sale of B. Williams & Co.'s stock, at 614 Yates St.

The soil in China is so rich that a square mile is said to be capable of supporting a population of nearly 4,000 people.

REV. EBENEZER ROBSON, D. D.

In his passing to the undiscovered country the subject of this article will be remembered with many reflections by the very large number of persons in British Columbia into whose religious lives Rev. Ebenezer Robson was instrumental in bringing the comforts of Christian ministrations. His body which awaits sepulture will be followed to its last resting place by, perhaps, the largest number of persons who have paid the last tribute to any individual, save one, who has been borne to the grave in the entire province.

Such occasions are neither accidental nor incidental: they are inevitable. They are the irresistible tribute which the many pay to the one and the many who knew the life of service, sacrifice and devotion which Ebenezer Robson lived will now say of him as it was said of Enoch, "He was not, for God took him." His instrumentality in building up the church of his choice in the province—and it was the church of his choice rather than that of his heritage—extending over so many years and permeating to the outermost bounds of British Columbia, has won for him not only the immortal crown for which he strove, but that immortality among men which will last as long as they themselves endure.

His personal character and temperament were those which eminently fitted him for such pioneer and missionary work as fell to the lot of one of the earliest Methodist missionaries. His physical constitution fitted him for endurance and his genius for active work inspired him to spare it not. The persistence and constancy with which he sought out the early settlers, often in then distant corners of the coast, exposed him to the perils that are incident to travel by land and by sea, but these never daunted his heroic spirit nor relaxed his application to the toils to which he felt himself called. His genius for organization left everywhere the manifestations of his visits and embryo causes were quickened into religious life, afterward becoming parts of the magnificent whole which he lived long enough to see in the denominational organization of to-day.

His reading was wide but always, and perhaps chiefly, of selections that would add fervor to his spiritual zeal as well as qualify him to meet adversity or opposition to his beliefs wherever he might find them. His preaching and his teaching were always studiously designed to lead those who waited on his ministrations into the highest experience of the Christian graces. He gave of his time, his strength and his earthly goods to the relief of suffering and removal of sorrow wherever he found it, and many a discouraged soul, both in body and mind, will gratefully recall the kindly deep and Godly counsel which marked for them the beginning of a new life and brightening hope.

He saw, far into the future, the needs of his church, both in religious and educational work, and followed the traditions of Methodism as far as they could be carried in the prosecution of his enterprises. Columbian Methodist College must ever be a monument to his patient yet unyielding conquest of every difficulty incident to its founding and the earlier years of its history.

The first evangelistic work among the Chinese in the province was done by Mr. Robson and the establishment of Methodist missions among the Orientals was due to his efforts. In the view of others with respect to the advent of the Chinese to this coast and the economic and industrial questions involved he meddled not. His one thought was of the responsibility of an enlightened people having the benefits of the Christian religion to those sojourning in our borders who were not so blessed. No one knows from any public utterance of his what he thought of the industrial strife which their presence provoked. His was the work of a Christian minister rather than that of a statesman.

His early responsibilities in the office of the British Columbia conference, which was organized on his advice, were discharged with a personal disinterestedness and absorption in his work that wielded a powerful influence over his colleagues and inspired the accessions to the work of the ministry with a zeal like unto his own. He held to the old traditions that seniority in the work deserved the chief place, but it was never for that place that he himself strove. If he failed to appreciate the changed conditions which grew out of the expansion of the population of the province and if, in his work of organization, he seemed at times to wield influence for his friends, no one will say that he ever sought preferment for himself. Loyalty to his conscience in all the matters involving place and preferment in his church for others whom he thought should have them was overshadowed only by the spirit of self-abnegation with which he began himself to "take the lowest place" in his Master's house.

In conversation he was enlightening; in debate he was apt and ready. If there were times when he seemed sarcastic and his colleagues who differed from him in their views felt the sting of his argument, there was never anything personal in such incidents. He fought his battles of debate to win; not for himself but what he thought was for the good of his Master's work. It is impossible to have strong men or heroes in the work of the church, as everywhere else, without those qualities which sometimes seem to be invulnerable in their advocacy of their beliefs.

In his riper years he broadened in mind and spirit to an extent which softened completely the apparent and necessary asperities of his more active years. His charity became unbounded and his faith in the immutable essentials of the Christian doctrine was a tower of strength to those, younger in years, who passed through the crises of analysis of Christian beliefs. The calmness and serenity with which he awaited the call which he knew was imminent was a fitting seal to the testimony of his life and an assurance that what he had told to others was then, in the supreme test, a comforting truth to himself.

THE INDIAN CLAIM.

The Colonist in spite of its garrulity is not quite equal to the task of drawing by specious argument the aniseed across the trail of the Indian. It will require but a few sentences to show that the lengthy dissertation of this morning is very wide of the mark.

The Times said the Colonist has no right to say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not think the Indians have any claim. It still thinks so notwithstanding the ipse dixit of the Colonist, and the Colonist has no information upon the subject which is not in possession of the Times.

The question in dispute as put to Sir Wilfrid in the complaint of the Indians is not whether the Indians have any "right" to the unceded lands of the province. The infection of the lengthy argument might have been spared. The question as agreed by the delegation before Sir Wilfrid was as to whether the Indians have any "claim." The courts of Canada are constantly settling disputes as to whether individuals or corporations have "claims" which require adjudication. It so happens that the courts often determine both the validity of a "claim" and define its nature where the plaintiff has not been sufficiently explicit in his statement. It is not the "right" of the Indians to "unceded lands" that Sir Wilfrid thinks, or does not think, should be brought into court. The "claim" of the Indians appears to be that some lands which were not ceded entitles them to a "right" to something. It may simply be another question of "better terms" for the people of British Columbia from the aboriginal standpoint. We are still unable to see why Hon. Richard McBride who was so willing to carry his own better terms proposition to the foot of the throne should now say, indifferently, "Lo, the Poor Indian!" The Colonist knows the crux of the argument just as well as we do.

Things are moving so rapidly in the peace arbitration conferences of the world that when an article on "The Present Situation" is written the night before it is out of date the next day.

Sakes alive! The Eastern papers are coming to hand regretting that the eclipse of the Sun on April 28 would not be visible back there. How it does annoy those people to be cheated out of a sensational phenomenon.

An English scientist affirms that the weather will gradually grow warmer during the next 400 years. It will grow a good deal warmer for some people we know in much less than 400 years.

The Calgary News-Telegram has expressed the opinion that in the appointment of Hon. Philippe Roy, M.D. of Edmonton, to be Canada's High Commissioner at Paris the Dominion government has selected a "fitting person" to represent Canada. That closes the case.

The Inland Colonist, a four-page two-year-old which has been published at Kitchener, announces its removal from that place on account of "better inducements" offered elsewhere. The only hint as to its new quarters is "Up-river." In this case up-river does not appear to mean up the spout.

The Winnipeg Post, a breast pocket edition of Saturday Night, suggests that the name of the great Conservative party in Canada be changed and says that a large number of Conservatives are in favor. Shades of Sir John! Didn't they change it to "Liberal-Conservative" a few years ago? Now they want to make it the "Unionist" party of Canada—all of which

The Arcadian Range

MADE LIKE A LOCOMOTIVE BOILER

The Arcadian Malleable is practically non-breakable and is made of the best charcoal iron plates, and the castings are of the highest quality. Charcoal iron, of which the best and largest steam boilers are made, in order that they may endure the greatest strain, is what is used for the body of the Arcadian range, and makes it proof against rust and crystallization. That is why this range is practically indestructible. A sheet of pure asbestos mill-board held between a sheet of charcoal iron and the iron body, is used for lining the flues and other parts, and all joints are riveted so closely and solidly by skillful workmen, that they are as tight as an engine boiler.

IT IS A PERFECT COOKING RANGE and efficiently accomplishes all that a housewife can desire, without consuming much fuel or making a hot kitchen.

IT IS EASY TO KEEP CLEAN and will last a lifetime, and as the chief cost of a range is not the first cost, but the annual fuel bill, you find this a very low priced range.

ELECTRIC IRONS

The NATIONAL ELECTRIC IRON is the woman's friend. It relieves her of that tiresome roasting experience peculiar to the process of pressing or ironing clothing with any of the old fashioned sad irons. That big hot fire is not necessary when the National is used. All you have to do is to connect the attachment cord to your electric light service, turn the switch and in 5 minutes you have a hot iron and a cool kitchen. It saves your strength, keeps you cool, makes hard work easy, no lost heat, no power wasted and cuts your laundry bill in half, because you will find it a pleasure to launder your own collars. It is built of a solid casting, has no parts to get out of order and is beautifully silver plated. Four or six pound size, each ..... $4.50

A Socialist paper on our desk says "Ask a Clergyman:

"If St. Basil said: 'The rich man is a thief.'

"If St. Chrysostom said: 'The rich are robbers; better all things in common.'

"If St. Clement said: 'Iniquity alone has created private property.'

"If St. Paul said: 'If any will not work, neither let him eat.'"

We, in turn would like the other man to ask Mr. Hawthorthwaite if—But we will have our list of questions ready for next week.

The new Encyclopaedia Britannica which is now in the presses has received the most favorable comment from reviewers who are eminently competent to express an opinion of its value as compared with earlier editions and other works of a less pretentious character. Not only does this latest edition preserve all the solid features of the former Britannicas, but its writers are among those who have made excursions into every possible field of scientific research and many new facts are made available to the public in this edition for the first time. The Times publishes in another page excerpts from an elaborate review made by Sir E. Ray Lancaster, a scientist and litterateur of note.

It is just worth while, before the speech has been forgotten, to make a note of Mr. Taff's statement that he and his friends were willing to give Canada a free interchange of all products; but that the Canadian Government would not entertain the proposal on the ground that our manufacturing industries could not bear competition with the more highly organized American concerns. This only confirms what Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding had already intimated, but in that far it shows how little ground there need be for fear, such as the Canadian manufacturers seemed for a time to feel, that the Laurier Cabinet is only waiting for a chance to throw them to the wolves."—Montreal Herald.

BEAUTIFY VICTORIA WITH PUBLIC PARKS

Mr. Justice Martin Writes the Council With a Scheme of Noble Parks

The parks of Victoria loomed large in the business of the city council last night. Among the communications was one from Mr. Justice Martin, who made a series of suggestions for beautifying the city by the extension of the present parks and the acquisition of new ones.

Among other things he urged that the council should take steps to preserve to the people as a park the whole of the block to the east of the Empress hotel, bounded by Humboldt, Douglas, Belleville and Blanchard streets. He also expressed the opinion that all the unsightly shacks adjoining the city property along the south side of Humboldt street should be swept away, and that the property on which they now stand should be expropriated and made into a park, which, by a process of additional expropriation, could connect with Beacon Hill.

By this means there has been drawn in his mind's eye "a noble and diversified and continuous park" from the water's edge at the causeway, right away out to Clover Point. By the adoption of this scheme, he forces Victoria the envy and admiration of every other city on the continent. He also explained that he has discussed the subject with many prominent citizens, and all of them favored its advocacy as being conducive to the higher amenity of the city.

The council, while not taking any immediate action on the suggestions offered, agreed to thank the writer and promised to give his suggestions every consideration.

Another matter connected with the parks of the city which came up last night was the proposal of A. E. Todd to let the city have the possession of lot 17, Olympia Park subdivision, for $40,000, to be used as a public park, and known by the title Olympia.

The proposition was the subject of a report by Alderman Hunter, chairman of the parks committee. The report stated that the ground in question was a very beautiful site for an observation park, and the price asked was not considered an unreasonable one, but taking into consideration the cost entailed in making the necessary improvements and removing the unnecessary "improvements," it was not

ROYAL WELCOME FOR THE BALL PLAYERS

Mayor Morley to Pitch First Ball—Ward's Dance in Evening

Already the excitement has commenced to spread. The Islanders are coming home on Monday and the fans are going to hand them such a hearty welcome that they will wonder how it came to be rumored about that one or two cases of that horrible "knocking" disease had broken out in Victoria. At almost every meeting that has had anything to do with sport, the return of the ball team has been brought up for consideration and ways and means of dispensing hospitality to the players discussed.

The boys will land from the steamer Troquada about 2:45 o'clock and the first sound to greet Eddie's ears will be a triumphant blast from the Fifth Regiment band. "See the Conquering Hero Comes," or something to that effect. The triumphant part of it comes in, not so much because of the games they have won, but because they have had no pull against such odds and yet have managed to win over one-fourth of their games. When the Islanders, headed by Wattlet and Householder, and the Indians, led by Cohn, have safely reached the shore, they will be placed in either automobiles or trolley-hos, whichever they prefer, and paraded through the streets to the ball yard.

Mayor Morley, officials of the baseball club, and many prominent citizens will be on hand to see that the affair is carried out in a manner consistent with its importance. For in the eyes of the sportsmen, at least, it is the most important thing that has happened in Victoria for years—the entry of the Northwestern league team into local ball circles. Prominent among those assembled will be the members of the Booster club. These thirty-three degree fans will gather at the Standard Book and Stationery store and on two trolley-hos which they have secured will depart with proper eclat to the scene of their first initial endeavors.

With "Higgins," Miss Cochrane's celebrated blue-ribbon fox terrier in his official capacity as Victoria's mascot, the entire procession of ball players, directors, aldermen and boosters will then proceed slowly to the Royal Athletic park, where the game is slated to commence at 4 o'clock. The team, in turn, will take the field for the usual warming-up, the ball will clang, Umpire Loganacker will strut on to the diamond and will screech in his nasal tone "Play Ball!" and the game is on.

Mayor Morley will pitch the first ball, with Joshua Kingham acting as backstop. When this impressive ceremony is over and the mayor has displayed his control and marvelous speed before the admiring eyes of the fans, the real work will start. Lane will take the box, Netzel will walk to the plate, the fan will catch his breath, and it is beyond anyone's power to predict just what will happen after that.

The teams in their batting order

(subject to changes, of course) are as follows:

Spokane—Netzel, 2b.; Cooney, ss.; Frisk, rf.; Nardye, lb.; Zimmerman, cf.; Tauscher, 2b.; Kippert, lf.; Hasty, c.; Bonner, Schwenk, Willis or Kraft, p.

Victoria—Davis, lf.; Raymer, 2b.; Million, cf.; Goodman, 2b.; Householder, rf.; Ward, ss.; Dashwood, c.; Lane, p.

The welcoming of the players, both Spokane and Victoria, does not, by any means, end with the game. For the evening the North Ward club, that most energetic and enterprising aggregation of young men, have planned a dance and supper in honor of the teams. It will be held in the A. O. U. hall, commencing at 9 o'clock and will continue until about 2. All arrangements have been made for one big hilarious time, to put it in the phraseology of one of the Ward members. A dainty supper will be provided. Miss Thane's orchestra will dispense music, and the hall has been decorated in a manner befitting the occasion. It is simply one mass of flags and pennants and placed in a conspicuous spot is an extensive collection of cups, medals and trophies of all kinds, evidence of the prowess of the boys in blue and white. The committee in charge of the affair is: E. Christopher, E. Taylor, W. Blake, J. Dakers, J. Johnson, S. Humber, A. McGregor and F. Sweeney.

AEROPLANE EXPERIMENTS

Sydney, N. S. W., May 6.—Experiments made with aeroplanes in New South Wales with a view of demonstrating their value in war time show that the aviators were able to locate the whereabouts of the enemy's camp from a distance of twelve miles. This is held by the military experts to show that the flying machine is certain to prove of the highest importance for scouting.

"JINKS" IS LIFTED FROM ISLANDERS

Victoria Won From Seattle Yesterday—Brown Puzzles the Giants

Victoria battled Joss, the Seattle twirler, out of the box yesterday in the first inning and won the game by a handy margin of four runs. The Giants found Brown an enigma, and never had a chance to overcome the long lead the Islanders had obtained.

Although the royal warrant and is now the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, it has not yet obtained permission to fly the new flag and ensigns. The only difference between the old and the new is that the latter has engraved upon it a crown with a monogrammed V. I. beneath it. The designs have been sent to the Admiralty, and as soon as the acceptance has been received the yachtsmen will break the flag out over their club house. Then the members must obtain permission to fly the ensign at the mast heads of their yachts, so that it will be some time before they can produce evidence of the fact that they are Royal Victoria yachtsmen.

An impressive ceremony will mark the breaking out of the new flag, as the yachtsmen consider that such an important occasion should not pass by unnoticed. The details have not been arranged, but will be as soon as word is received from England. Invitations, asking the local yachtsmen to contribute as many entries as they are able for the Cates cup race at North Vancouver, and the Doman and Metropolitans cup contests at Seattle, have been received by the secretary, Capt. Jarvis. These will be brought up for consideration at the next meeting. They are as follows:

Tacoma, April 26, 1911.

Secretary Victoria Yacht Club, Victoria:

"Dear Sir,—On May 26 the power cruiser race for the Doman cup will be held here, and we sincerely hope that you and the members of the club will accept the invitation of this club and enter as many boats as possible.

On May 27th under the auspices of the Seattle and Tacoma Yacht Clubs, the final race for the Metropolitans cup will be held for sailing cruisers. This race will start at Seattle on the above date round Gedgey Island and finish at Tacoma. This will bring the sailing boats in Tacoma in time for the Decoration Day regatta.

The cruiser race for the Doman cup from Tacoma to Seattle and return will start at 9 a. m. Decoration Day. This race will be held under the auspices of the Seattle and Tacoma Yacht Clubs, Tacoma providing a second and third prize for the race. The Tacoma Club will keep open house during the eve of the 29th and 30th.

A detailed programme for the regatta will be mailed to you later. Can we not depend on you and your club to send a number of boats over either to participate in the races or take some part in the regatta? An early reply will be appreciated.

A. G. LARSEN, Chairman Regatta Committee, North Vancouver, April 29, 1911.

Hon. Secretary Victoria Yacht Club, Victoria, B. C.:

Dear Sir,—The date for the race for the Cates Cup has been fixed for the 3rd June, and to start from Burrard Inlet and back to the inlet.

The boats will this year be handicapped on actual performance. Kindly furnish me at your earliest convenience with a list of owners of boats in your club who may enter this race, so that I may send them entry forms, etc., and oblige.

Some big prizes are paid out to the fortunate speculator in the pari-mutuel system of betting which will be in operation at the race meets at the Willows track this year. For instance, on a recent race at Buenos Ayres the enormous dividend of $502.25 was paid in the 3rd mutuels, with $75 for $2 for a place. In the Argentine, place means in the first three.

Joe Moore, the crack local five-mile runner, and G. Williscroft, another well known athlete, particularly renowned for his basketball playing, which game he played for the Y. M. C. A. team all through the past season, have left for northern British Columbia. Both are

"The Razor of To-day"

GILLETTE Blades Are Harder—Keener—Smoother—Than Forged Razor Blades

Before the GILLETTE was invented razor blades were all forged. That is, a piece of mild steel was heated and hammered out till it took the form of a razor blade. Every heating, every hammering, changed the hardness of the steel a little—how much, no man could tell, but more in some parts than others, because these parts were hammered out more.

Naturally, to temper perfectly a blade of such uncertain and uneven hardness is impossible.

In making GILLETTE blades we start with an ingot of steel, too fine in quality to stand forging, whose composition we know by analysis. We roll this out to the thinness of the finished blade, then stamp out the blades ready for tempering.

The composition of the steel is not altered by the rolling and stamping as it is by forging, so that each blade comes out not only even in texture throughout, but of the same quality as every other blade. As our patented automatic tempering process tempers each blade through and through in precisely the same way, the finished blades have an even, uniform hardness which cannot possibly be equalled in forged blades.

Two of the hardest, keenest, smoothest shaving edges the world has ever seen are found on each and every GILLETTE blade. Not only is the GILLETTE the safest, quickest, most convenient and only adjustable razor, but it carries the best edge. That is what interests the shaver most.

CHARLOTTE READY

WITHIN TEN DAYS

Work of Equipping Crack Princess With Oil Burners Almost Completed

Within the next ten days the crack C. P. R. steamer Princess Charlotte will again be operating on the triangular run after having been laid up for the past three months. Painters have been busy for some time giving the steamer several coats in order to brighten up both its inside and outside appearance. The finishing touches are now being made and it will not be long before she is again ready for duty.

Ever since the beginning of February the Charlotte has been off the run, her lie-up having been made so lengthy owing to the fact that she has had oil-burners installed in her. The work of constructing the oil tanks has taken much time, but the experts, who have been supervising it, announce that the task has just about been completed. The burners have been installed, and she is almost prepared for her trial trip.

That the big steamer will eclipse all former records for the routes over which she operated is the belief of many, as it is expected that her speed will be considerably increased when using the oil. When pronounced ready for service she will have her tanks filled with the fuel and taken over the regular speed course—from the harbor entrance to Race Rocks, then to Trial Island and back to the harbor.

When the Princess Charlotte commences on the tri-city run, the Princess Victoria will be replaced by the Adelaide, which is now relieving the Charlotte. It is understood that the Victoria will not be equipped with the oil burners this year, owing to the tourist season being so close at hand, the need of the Princess Royal on the Skagway run and the Princess Adelaide on the night run between this city and Vancouver.

U. S. SURVEY STEAMERS.

Will Carry Out Extensive Work in Sounding Alaskan Waters.

Seattle, Wash., May 6.—The coast survey steamer Patterson sailed Thursday night for Sannak Island, Alaska, and will spend the summer in making soundings and maps of the waters surrounding the island, and also in seeking a navigable channel in Unga Strait, between Unga Island and the Alaska peninsula. Capt. Gilbert Rude, of the survey steamer Taish, which wintered at Cordova, sailed yesterday to join his ship, and the crew of the survey steamer Yukon, which wintered at Kodiak, sailed for Seward on the way to Kodiak.

The McArthur, which will complete the survey to Cook Inlet, and the Geney, which is to survey Wrangell and Congress Narrows, are nearly ready to sail from Seattle. The Explorer, now at San Francisco, will go north in June to mark a channel in the mighty

ALL SHIP YARDS EXTREMELY BUSY

FIRMS PREDICT FINEST
SEASON YET ON RECORD

Slips Are All Occupied Now and Will Be Engaged for Considerable Time

Prospects of one of the busiest seasons in the history of the local ship-building yards, is the announcement made by the heads of all these concerns. Most of the yards are at present taxed to the limit with orders for repairing vessels for the summer trade and building scows, barges and various other craft. The managers are complaining of a scarcity of labor, which is holding back the work considerably. This drawback, it is expected, will soon be removed, as a large number of ship-carpenters are coming to Victoria.

All the slips here are occupied by vessels and it is said that they are all engaged for some time to come. The owners of every kind of craft are desirous of having their vessels overhauled now, and for this reason the work is congested. There is ample work in Victoria at the shipyards, almost double the number of men now employed.

Yesterday morning ship-carpenters at the yards of Wm. Turpel commenced laying the keels for three scows ordered by Leeming Bros. On Thursday a large scow for the Saddle Towboat Company was launched, after having been constructed in record time. On the slip at Turpel's yards at present are the tug Beaver and the steam whaler Sebastian. The latter is receiving a general overhauling, while the Beaver, which is owned by the Beaufort Lumber Company, is to have a new Scottish boiler and engines installed in her and will be in splendid shape when she is launched from the ways. Before the Sebastian was hauled out this morning Capt. Gardiner's tug Dorothy was on the slip having a larger wheel fitted and her hull painted. The tug Phoenix is awaiting to be pulled out to be overhauled, and it will be several days before there is room on the ways for her. The big spuds of the dredge Ajax are to be taken out of the water shortly to have new castings fitted to the bottoms of them.

Across the inner harbor at the Victoria Machinery depot is one of the busiest spots. The C. P. R. steamer Joan is on the ways being overhauled; the Charnier alongside the dock being almost reconstructed, and the dredgers Mastodon and Ajax lying there having some repair work effected. It is expected that the Joan will be ready for launching very shortly and resume her sailings on the Nanaimo-Vancouver run. In the case of the Charnier it will, however, be several weeks yet before she is ready to leave her yards. As with the other C. P. R. steamers that have been equipped with oil burners, much time has been consumed in constructing the tanks. The Charnier has also had her hull practically rebuilt, and when the Machinery Depot is through with her she will look almost like a new boat. The dredgers are having repairs made to their machinery, which will be completed very shortly.

At the B. C. Marine Railway at Esquimalt things are in the same condition as at the other yards. The Vado is on the ways having her hull repaired, which was damaged through striking a rock in River's Inlet. It will be a few days before she is back on her run as many plates were dented and her stern post twisted. Alongside the docks are several vessels which are receiving attention and other craft will be tied up there for repairs before long. Work on the new C. P. R. barge is proceeding apace and will provide employment for many men for some time.

Alex Watson is building a river steamer at his yards beside several launches. He expects one of the busiest seasons he has ever experienced.

From Delong Bay the British six-masted barquentine Everett G. Griggs, the only vessel of her rig now afloat, arrived at Sydney yesterday for docking, says the Sydney, N. S. W., Daily Commercial News of March 21. Captain Sterling, formerly of the Great Admiral W. F. Babcock and other vessels well known at Sydney, stated during an interview that for twenty days after leaving East London the Everett G. Griggs met fine weather, but then she fell in with heavy gales and being in light trim, knocked about a great deal.

While she was riding out mountainous seas in the Southern Ocean her fore-top-gallant mast and yard snapped off at the cap and went overboard. This crippled the vessel a good deal, as she is only square-rigged on the foremast and the sails on the driver could not afterward be used owing to there being so little head sail aloft. When the gales abated the vessel fell in with light baffling head winds, which lasted as far as Tasmania, and as she could not port her full sail spread in light weather, the going was slow. Nothing sensational occurred during the voyage.

SEALING SCHOONERS HAVE FAIR CATCHES

Lady Mine and Jessie at Northern Ports—Amur Has Dirty Passage

Bringing south word that two of the local sealing schooners had reported at northern ports the Lady Mine, Capt. Delouchrey, with 100 skins at Rose Harbor, and the Jessie, Capt. George Heater, with about 50 pelts at Jedway, the C. P. R. steamer Amur, Capt. Locke, arrived in port yesterday afternoon from Queen Charlotte Islands and northern British Columbia points after a dirty passage.

According to reports the Jessie had poor luck after leaving here and if she had not run into a large number of seals during the last two days before reaching Jedway her catch would have been very small. She took 50 pelts within 48 hours, which made her catch mount to a fair figure, despite the fact that she left port late. While crossing Hecate straits the Amur sighted three Japanese schooners under sail, which were unable to engage in sealing owing to the heavy weather.

Throughout her trip coming south the Amur experienced a dirty weather. Heavy rains fell and strong southeast gales were encountered, which battered the ship badly. She brought south a number of passengers and 300 cases of halibut from Paoon. The Amur will sail north again to-morrow night and she will have a full cargo of freight, having loaded 200 tons of cement at Inlet for the Ocean Falls Pulp employees.

It was expected that the Amur would lie up after completing this trip and be replaced on the run by the Princess Beatrice. The Joan, however, is not ready for service yet and the Beatrice cannot be withdrawn from the Nanaimo route, so the Amur will have to make one more trip before her overhauling.

BE WARNED BY HEADACHES

It Tells of Serious Derangements of the Liver and Kidneys.
DR. CHASE'S

KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

You can stop a headache with powerful drugs. But it is not generally wise to do so.

A headache almost always warns you of derangements of the digestive system, the liver, kidneys or bowels. Awaken the liver to healthy action by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and you not only free yourself of headache, but remove the cause which will soon lead to more dangerous results than headache.

Invigorate the action of the kidneys by this treatment and you take away the dangers of Bright's disease as well as free yourself of headache.

Pains are the result of poison in the system and whether you have headache, backache or aching limbs, you can be almost sure of relief and cure when you cleanse and regulate the vital organs by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They are wonderfully prompt, as well as definite and thorough in action. You can depend upon them, no matter how long-standing or complicated your case, so long as the cause is the sluggish, torpid condition of the liver and kidneys.

If you don't feel like risking 25 cents for a box, write for a free sample. A trial will convince you of their merits. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box; all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

ICE BREAKING, WATER RISING, BOATS READY

Snows Melting Rapidly in Klondike District—Steamers Loading Cargoes

Dawson, Y.T., May 6.—The snows are melting at such a tremendous rate that the Klondike mine railway tracks are inundated at the mouth of Bonanza creek and the government wagon road is covered for a quarter of a mile in the same vicinity.

One ice jam broke, allowing the water to recede to some extent, leaving tremendous chunks of ice seven feet thick blocking the road. Many men and teams will be necessary to clear the highway. There is danger that a jam near Klondike City will carry out the railway bridge. On the Yukon tributaries ice is breaking everywhere.

The steamers Pauline, Evelyn and La France are in the water at the foot of Lake La Barge, ready to start with eight barges for Dawson as soon as the river breaks, probably about the 15th. The White Skat with a barge plans to start on the 20th.

The steamer Victorian at Yukon Crossing will start with a cargo of cattle for Dawson, Fairbanks and Iditarod as soon as the river is open. The entire fleet will bring 500 tons, principally for Iditarod.

The steamers Sarah, St. Michael and Kerr are here ready to sail for the lower Yukon about the 20th.

The steamer Tanana now at La Barge will go to White Horse for cargo before starting for the lower Yukon.

It was in the box office of the Victoria theatre Thursday evening at 5 o'clock that the telephone rang and a voice in silvery tones asked for Mr. Frederick Warde, who at that moment was in his dressing room and would not have responded to a call, even if anyone had had the temerity to summon him. This was explained to the caller, but she was insistent. She was sure Mr. Warde would come if a message was sent to him. No, his manager would not do; she must talk to Mr. Warde.

Despairing of making the lady understand that she was demanding the impossible, and having been for some minutes aware of the impatient rapping at the wicket of the head of a line of patrons, the harassed but usually courteous treasurer hung up the receiver.

Five minutes later. Could she speak to Mr. Frederick Warde's manager? But meanwhile that gentleman had drifted off to have a look at the house, scheme a few weeks back, and since then new scenery has been arriving, which has been praised by all patrons. The last of it is now here, and the stage settings offered this week with the excellent bill show a greatly improved attractiveness of the Grand as a place of entertainment.

Patrons found new carpets laid, which gave a comfortable and restful feeling. The draperies have been in the hands of the renovators and the utmost regard has been paid by the management towards having everything about the house placed under the most sanitary conditions. New fire escape exit doors of the latest pattern are to be installed as soon as they arrive, and Sullivan & Considine have now one of their most complete and most prettily decorated houses right here in Victoria.

Miss Mary Hamilton, daughter of the Archbishop of Ottawa, joined Miss Margaret Anglin's company in Toronto of course, the cast had not been as carefully chosen or as thoroughly rehearsed as will be the case when it is put on permanently.

Mrs. Leslie Carter seems to be down and out financially. A few days ago she faced a group of creditors in a dingy law office in New York, and explained

ROBERT CHIGNELL
Bass Soloist With the Sheffield Choir, at the Drill Hall May 17-18-19.

that she had lost $82,000 in her last attempt at actress-manager. She was in Philadelphia with three cartloads of scenery when the play went under, and she said she made a present of it all to the local manager rather than pay expenses back to New York.

"Have you any jewelry?" asked the trustee of the creditors.

"I haven't had any jewelry for the last five years," replied the broken idol of stardom.

"Bank account?"

"Not for seven years."

"Got any cash?"

"None," she said, "my husband stole it from my manager and I got only my living. And I can assure you I am trying very hard to make that living."

A combination of vaudeville enterprises representing $50,000,000 in capital is said to be in process of formation in New York. A desire to resist the growing demands of vaudeville performers, who are reported to be forming a union, is given as the reason for the managers' desire to get together.

"The Mikado."

Keen interest has been awakened in local musical circles by the announcement of the forthcoming production of Gilbert and Sullivan's perennially popular opera, "The Mikado," by the Vancouver Amateur Operatic Society at the Victoria theatre this evening.

Apart from the fact that the Terminal City singers will have the assistance of Madame Ada Bennett and Alfred Goulding in the roles of "Katisha" and "Ko-Ko" respectively, and that the presentation of the opera will be on a scale of magnificence never before attempted in Victoria, the presence of so many talented vocalists recruited from the ranks of Vancouver society upon the stage of the local theatre lends a significance to the occasion which will undoubtedly make the performance one of the noteworthy events of the season.

The opera will be given by a company of eighty singers, the performance being identical with the two offerings made by the society in Vancouver on April 17 and 18, which not only drew capacity audiences to the Vancouver Opera House, but won from the press and musical critics of that city unstinted praise and congratulations.

Alfred Goulding, the well known Australian comedian, is most happily placed in the part of the "Lord High Executioner," and is heard to great advantage in "I've got 'em on my list" and "Till Willow," while his comedy work has been ranked with that of some of the best artists who have won renown in this somewhat exacting role.

Madame Ada Bennett, who will appear as "Katisha," was most enthusiastically received in Vancouver, her splendid acting as the unlovely and tragic old maid, supplemented by her fine singing, being credited with a material contribution toward the success of the opera.

Foremost among the society's amateurs in the leading roles of the piece are G. H. Davis, who interprets the difficult part of "Nanki Poo," the wandering minstrel; George Taschereau, whose "Pooh Bah" was a distinctive success; George Chaffey, who plays "Plush Tush," and Carl Kenning, who will appear as "The Mikado."

Miss Luvia Ford, Miss Ruth Cordingley and Miss May Chester, the "three little maids from school," can be counted upon to repeat the success of their performances at Vancouver, which were characterized as "excellent" by the critics. The singing of these talented young ladies and their stage manners are alike of a quality far above amateurism to judge by newspaper tributes. Miss Cordingley will play the leading part of "Yum Yum," Miss Ford will appear as "Petti-Sing" and Miss Chester as "Peep-Bop."

The chorus will be personally directed by H. J. Pollard, whose splendid work in rehearsing the company has been warmly appreciated by those who witnessed the performances on the Mainland.

No expense has been spared to make the presentation of "The Mikado" as nearly perfect as possible from scenic, costume and mechanical standpoints. The scenery has been especially painted at the Pollard Studio for the production, and the setting of the two acts into which the opera is divided is in keeping with the general excellence of the offering.

New Grand Theatre.

"Tactics," the playlet in which the Barrows-Lancaster company will star at the Grand next week, is considered one of the most delightful of modern playlets. "Tactics" has all the elements of a civil war drama boiled down into a twenty-five minute tabloid. There is the same little love story, southern girl, northern man and, of course, the same happy ending. They meet and their fathers meet, only to discover that they had met before on the field of Gettysburg and that each had maimed the other. Then the civil war is reopened and Gettysburg is re-fought, with dishes and bric-a-brac for weapons and with chairs, tables and what-not doing duty as "positions," "ambushes" and the like. As fun it is riotous; as a bit of sentiment it is delightful, and as an example of finished, worthy acting it is more than ordinarily noteworthy.

Sadie Sherman, relative of those who owned the name famous in United States history, comes here Monday as supporting act number one for the headliner at the Grand. Miss Sherman appears in exceedingly clever cosmopolitan characterizations. A delightful little comedienne, possessed of a personality that is decidedly fetching, this daughter of the States is assured a warm welcome because of her name and her undoubted ability.

Another new and sensation-creating athletic act is billed. This time it is Lohse and Stirling, two youngsters who will be responsible for the Grand's feature act. Personal danger, while eliminated from their turn, does not appear to be eliminated because the act is in every sense sensational.

The tenor voice of Jack Goldie will be heard in a number of pleasing melodies, and as Goldie possesses a fund of humor he promises to be an added feature of considerable distinction as a single-handed entertainer.

Jack Inglis and May Readin do an ordinary act in a different way, and qualify as one of Sullivan and Considine's classiest attractions in the song, dance and patter division. Their songs are new and their voices good. Their patter is down-to-date, which means that they must plead guilty to free use of the very newest slang. All in all it is a rollicking little act they have to offer.

The Grandiose pictures are reported to be as good as those at present showing, which are among the best ever seen here.

Victoria Theatre.—Alick Lauder, who visits the Victoria theatre on Monday, is the younger brother of the famous Harry Lauder, who has made the name popular all over the world. Around the mining district of Hamilton, Scotland, the Lauder family have always had a reputation for song, story and comedy. Harry and Alick's services always being in great demand on all festive occasions. In feature and style they resemble each other, and there is no doubt that Harry owes much of his earlier success to the coaching of his younger brother Alick, who helped him in many ways, supplying him on many occasions with original Scotch drooleries, which afterwards stood him in good stead.

Just at the time Harry finally decided to adopt the stage as a profession, Alick received a tempting offer from a London firm to go gold prospecting, and although he had a lingering towards the profession also, he accepted the offer, for as he said, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," and he spent two years in the Sudan and Gold Coast, and amongst the Arabs and Southerners. The many dangerous and numerous experiences encountered during his mining days would fill a book of itself, and after many novel and ex-ling experiences in other parts of the world, he eventually gave up the mining and roving life, and took to his first love, the concert and music hall, and though only four years in the work, he has made a name for himself in the London halls, and is looked upon as second only to his brother Harry as a Scottish comedian and entertainer.

To hear him in his character studies and especially his burlesque acting of the wishing well and his heroic story of how he gained the old age pension but escaped the income tax, is really a work to be seen and heard.

Vesta Victoria.
One of the current magazines has just submitted the proofs of an article to Miss Vesta Victoria, the dainty English comedienne who is now touring Canada at the head of a company of international entertainers, and has asked the actress to express an opinion on the theories set forth by the author. The title of the article is: "Will Women Be The Songwriters of the Future?" and Miss Victoria has written an extended criticism of the ideas embodied in the essay by the author.

The actress maintains that women are the more prolific songwriters, but they are not the most successful. Leaving out experienced balladists, Miss Victoria maintains, women are cleverer in certain lines. The lyrics they write are brighter and wittier than those that are usually furnished by the opposite sex.

Miss Victoria has two songs in her repertoire that bid fair to become as popular as "Waiting at the Church" and "Poor John." These songs are entitled "Now I have to call him Father," and "Don't Sing the Chorus." In several Canadian cities visited by Miss Victoria and her big company of international players, the little English singer has fairly taken the audience off its feet with enthusiasm, being forced to give eleven encores of the same chorus on one occasion. They are the attraction at the Victoria theatre for Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13.

CUSTOMS RETURNS INCREASE.

Nanaimo, May 5.—The customs returns for Nanaimo and district for April show an increase of $2,341.91 over those preceding month, the totals for the various sub-ports being as follows: Nanaimo, $5,548.93; Ladysmith, $442.74; Chemainus, $3,357.17; Union Bay, $5,132.16; Port Alberni, $27.11; Cumberland, $28.45; Alberni, $24.25; Courtenay, $46.27. Total, $15,607.08.

Natural gas has been used in China for many centuries. It issues from fissures in the earth near the coal mines, and is led through bamboo tubes to the point where it is consumed.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA

This talented English comedienne has been delighting crowded houses all across the continent on her first Canadian tour, and appears at the Victoria Theatre for two performances, Friday and Saturday evenings, May 12 and 13.

Well, would he kindly take a message for Mr. Warde? Certainly, with pleasure. Would he ask Mr. Warde "to put his whole soul into his acting tonight so that the people of Victoria would be properly impressed with his genius?"

Can you beat it? And yet there are people who think the man in the box has a job that is all beer and skittles. We would like to be near enough to hear what any star, no matter the gender or magnitude, would say if some manager were injudicious or inexperienced enough to convey such a message, no matter how well-intentioned the sender. Wouldn't the air be blue?

For the next couple of weeks, in addition to a local engagement or two, there are several attractions booked for the Victoria theatre. To-night there will be a performance of the ever-green "Tactics" by a company of Vancouver amateurs. On Monday Alick Lauder will appear. Miss Vesta Victoria will be here for the last two days of the week. In the week following "The Girl from Rector's" returns, and "The Barrier" comes. It is a matter for much regret that the engagement of Ruth St. Denis for May 18 has been cancelled owing to the concurrent engagement last week and will continue with it for the remainder of the tour in "Green Stockings." One of the members of the company was called home to Chicago by the illness of her mother, and Miss Anglin was in a quandary until she thought of Miss Hamilton, whom she had met while in her native city, and who was anxious to be with her. Miss Hamilton arrived in Thursday morning, rehearsed with the company until noon, memorized her lines during the afternoon and that night played the role without nervousness and to the perfect satisfaction of the star.

It has been definitely announced that Miss Anglin will stage Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's play, "Hippolytus," in the New Theatre, New York, for several performances next winter. Miss Anglin gave it a single presentation in Boston some weeks ago, and its reception there appears to have given her confidence in the drama. On that occasion,

"A Most Valuable Food"

At a time when the preparation of artificial foodstuffs is receiving more attention than ever before, and when new forms of easily assimilable fat to take the place of cod liver oil are being frequently brought to the notice of the medical profession, it is desirable that some of the older forms of administering natural fats should not be lost sight of. Among natural fats, butter easily takes first place for nutritive value, and when combined with a suitable soluble carbohydrate, a most valuable food is produced.

The BUTTER SCOTCH which Messrs. Callard & Bowser (Duke's Road, Euston Road, W. C.) have prepared for fifty years, is such an article, which has the great advantage of being palatable, so palatable, in fact, that children are more likely to need restraining from excess than any preparation to take it. This BUTTER SCOTCH is stated to contain 11.7 per cent. of fat and 73.3 per cent. of sugar, and the results of an analysis which we have made recently of a specimen substantially confirm these figures; further chemical examination of the fat extracted showed it to be genuine butter fat. This confection can therefore be recommended, not only as a harmless sweetmeat, but also as a very useful addition to the diet in suitable cases.

CALLS AT ALL WEST COAST LIGHTHOUSES

Newington Returns After Two Weeks' Cruise—Going to Dixon's Entrance

Completing a trip to West Coast lighthouse stations with stores and supplies, the steamer Newington, Capt. Barnes, of the marine and fisheries department, returned to port this morning. The little vessel experienced some heavy weather during her two weeks' absence, especially off Triangle Island when she received the full force of several stiff southerly gales, which has suffered badly of late as a result of the heavy winds and its exposed position.

Gordon Halkett, who was on a tour of inspection, reports everything satisfactory at all the lighthouses along the West Coast. The steamer went north by the outside passage and came south following the inside passage. No work was done by the Newington during her southbound trip, only the West Coast being included in her list of duties to be performed. Shortly after the arrival of the steamer in port she was dispatched by the department to search for the Rosedale buoy, which is reported adrift. The two whalers, Sebastian and Germania, conducted a futile search for the missing aid in the vicinity of Race Rocks, and the Newington is attempting to locate it. The Newington is very shortly to be sent north to Langara Island, where a new lighthouse of the first order is to be constructed. H. C. Killen, district engineer, will leave on the vessel and besides surveying the site for the light will also go over the ground at Rose Spit, where another lighthouse is to be erected. Both these lights are in Dixon's Entrance, and will be of great benefit to mariners plying in those waters.

OAK BAY TO HAVE CHURCH EDIFICE

Will Be Built as a Chapel of Ease to Christ Church Cathedral

Last evening the Dean of Columbia met the parishioners of Oak Bay at the school house for the purpose of discussing ways and means for raising sufficient funds to build a chapel-of-ease to the cathedral in that municipality.

A number of ladies and gentlemen were present and much interest was shown by the discussion ensuing. The first business was the election of secretary, treasurer and committee for the ensuing year.

The dean appointed C. F. de Salls as his acting rector's warden and secretary, whilst Thos. Ashe was nominated acting people's warden and treasurer, and the following strong committee was chosen: J. S. Floyd, J. J. Bennett, H. E. Howell, C. Baxter, H. Crane, Percy James and Dr. H. R. Nelson.

The out-going committee were able to report that they had obtained a very fine site for the new church on Burn street, at the cost of $2,400.

This property has been paid for and is held in trust for the church in Oak Bay.

Resides this the committee reported a balance of nearly $500 in the bank, and further promises of some $500. To build and complete the church about $2,000 will be required, and the newly-elected committee, with the help of the ladies of the parish and the ladies guild, are making a very strong effort to raise this sum.

The rapid increase in the population of Oak Bay during the last few years and the great distance from the cathedral, in which parish Oak Bay is included, make it imperative for a church to be built as soon as possible in the municipality. All those interested in this matter are being asked to subscribe to the building fund, and may send their subscriptions to the secretary, Oak Bay church committee, room 202, Times building.

Unless the greater part of the amount required can be obtained during the next week or ten days, it has been decided to build a very much smaller church which, without doubt, would have to be enlarged again in a very short time, so it is hoped that this decision will not have to be resorted to.

that makes for righteousness in this province.

"No Temperance" Decree.
The greatest interest of the last evening's session centered on the report of the committee constituted to deal with the question of the recent "no temperance" decree, the report of the committee on social and moral reform and the report of the committee on Westminster Hall. The committee dealing with the "no temperance" decree brought in the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Whereas the present status of the marriage law in the province of Quebec in some cases works great injustice and imposes a stigma upon innocent parties involving grievous civil disabilities, we therefore humbly overture the venerable general assembly to take such action, as after careful study of the whole question, seems to it wisest, to secure that such marriages as are already entered into shall be declared valid, and so to amend the law as to secure equal treatment in the eyes of the law for all citizens of Canada."

Sabbath Observance.

The report of the committee on social and moral reform was read by the Moderator, Rev. J. S. Henderson. It was a very comprehensive report and a number of questions were considered. In dealing with the question of Sabbath observance, the committee reported that the prevailing opinion among the congregations in the synod was that the Sabbath observance was gravely affected by professing Christians who were not careful as to their habits, and in the question of working on the Lord's Day Act.

Westminster Hall.
The report of the committee on Westminster Hall was submitted by Dr. Campbell of Victoria, seconded by Mr. G. F. Gibson, and spoken to by Principal McKay of Westminster Hall and the Rev. A. J. Burch, financial agent for the institution.

The report showed that the progress of the college had exceeded the most sanguine expectations and called attention to the fact that $110,000 had been subscribed to the endowment fund of the institution in Vancouver. Attention was called to the theological conference to be held here in July and to the moving of the present building to the campus of the new University of British Columbia.

Foreign Missions.
After the reading of the report on foreign missions the moderator made a short address, stating that owing to the great interest that had been taken in home missions the question of foreign missions had been a little neglected.

He called attention to the large Asiatic population in the province and said that they were being neglected. Only $14,594 was allotted to the synod last year for foreign missions, but this year the sum has been raised to $16,000.

A most interesting address was also given on the subject by Rev. Alexander Dunn, Jr.

"Unbleached Yet White as Snow"

The Young People's Society of the Congregational church. The subject for debate is, "Resolved, that bachelors are of more value to the world than old maid."

The Congregational ladies' adult class will have a social evening next Friday.

The subjects for to-morrow's sermons in First Baptist church by the pastor will be: "The Unsearchable Riches of Christ" in the morning and "What Must I Do to be Saved?" for the evening.

The members of First Baptist church will partake of the ordinance of the Lord's supper at the conclusion of the evening service to-morrow. There will also be a reception of new members. Next Sunday will be especially observed as mother's day. The pastor will preach an appropriate sermon at the morning service and at the Sunday school session there will be special features and interesting exercises.

The handkerchief and house plant sale of the First Baptist Ladies' Aid was exceedingly well patronized on Thursday afternoon and evening. The tea tables were presided over by Mrs. J. Middleton and a corps of young lady assistants. Mesdames King and Small had charge of the plant tables, while Mesdames R. T. Elliott, Bradshaw, Wilson, Clyde and McIntyre, capably disposed of the large number of handkerchiefs. Miss B. H. Walker supervised the apron stall.

NOTABLE SOUVENIR

Gavel of Redwood From Old Pandora Avenue Methodist Church.

At the forthcoming meeting of the Methodist Conference in the city of Vancouver next week, an interesting item on the programme will be the presentation of a gavel to the Rev. S. D. Chown, D.D., general superintendent of the Methodist church. The gavel is made of redwood taken from the foundation of the old Pandora Avenue Methodist church, and the presentation will be appropriate owing to a peculiar combination of circumstances.

The session of the conference which opens next Thursday is the twenty-fifth session of the B. C. Conference, it will be the first annual conference over which Dr. Chown has presided in his official capacity as general superintendent, and the gavel is made of timber taken from the church in which the conference was organized twenty-five years ago.

DR. ROBSON'S FUNERAL

Will Take Place in Vancouver on Tuesday Afternoon.

The funeral services of the late Dr. Ebenezer Robson will take place Tuesday afternoon next at 2.30 in the Mount Pleasant Methodist church. Arrangements are being made for many members of the British Columbia Conference, which convenes the following morning, to attend, and there will also be representatives of other churches present.

The president of the conference, Rev. R. Newton Powell, and pastor of the church, Rev. W. Lashley Hall, will take part in the services. Many Victoria ministers have expressed their intention of being present and will leave on Monday's boat for Vancouver. Twenty-five years ago Dr. Robson was elected the first president of the British Columbia Conference, and the silver anniversary of the conference will be noted next week, when the members meet in sixth avenue Methodist church, Vancouver.

Dr. Robson's first sermon upon arrival in British Columbia was preached in the Craigflower school house, at the head of the Gorge Arm. Since that time he kept up his preaching until a few months ago, when a stroke of paralysis made it impossible for him to longer continue his activities. He had longed for a glimpse of the future development of this land, and many times secured lots for church sites and held them until the time came for a congregation to be established.

The forthcoming annual conference of British Columbia Methodism will be saddened by the sense of loss when it is realized that the beloved pioneer has gone, and the programme committee will arrange a suitable memorial service to be held during the sessions of the conference.

Hon. John Robson, one time premier of the province, was a brother of Dr. Robson's, and the name will be perpetuated in history by Mount Robson, the famous peak on the line of the G. T. P. railway.

CALL TO CATHOLIC WOMEN.

The Catholic Church Extension Society of the United States, of which Archbishop Quigley of Chicago is chancellor, has issued a call for a Catholic women's missionary movement. The society refers in its call to the Protestant women's missionary movements which accomplish much, it says. The society proposes branches, and expresses the hope that at the missionary congress, to be called next year, enough will have been formed to put the movement upon a national basis. Two rules, prayer and sacrifice, are outlined for the movement. The prayer to be made on one day each year, something good without to the value of fifty cents, and that amount contributed to the movement. Especially urgent does the society regard its work for Catholic children, and the call for the movement, states that women entering it are to work particularly for children, those of American born Catholics, and of Catholic immigrants. The official call contains pictures of people and buildings illustrative of work accomplished by Protestant women in missionary activity. The society expresses the belief that Catholic women, if organized, can do as much, perhaps more.

GIBBONS' GIFT GENERAL.

Baltimore and Washington friends of Cardinal Gibbons coveted the honor of giving the entire $100,000 needed to erect at the Catholic University a Gibbons memorial hall, to become a dormitory for lay students, but so many are the friends of the cardinal in all parts of the country who insist upon contributing, that his diocesan friends have been compelled to share the honor. An address on the subject, setting forth this fact, has just been sent to all Catholic clergy in the United States. Influence has been brought in view of pressing needs of the university, to erect another memorial there, but the cardinal modestly refuses to sanction the plan, even to help the university. The event celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the cardinal's elevation to the Sacred College, and the fifth of his ordination to the priesthood.

GYROSCOPE ANTI-SKID.

Skidding—the nightmare of all motorists—is soon to become a thing of the past. The gyroscope affords a sure way of preventing a car from skidding.

When a gyroscope is fitted to a motor car, either in front or on the back wheels, it is absolutely impossible for the car to swerve even an inch from the path which it is being steered.

The gyroscope, making automatic adjustments in the steering, corrects any tendency to skid in its wheel.

Experiments have already been made on steep hills with a right-angle turn at the bottom. In every case the corners were negotiated with the greatest ease.

A handsome debate will be held on Monday evening under the auspices of

CHURCH NOTES

Anniversary services will be held in the James Bay Methodist church to-morrow. Rev. S. T. Bartlett, of Toronto, will preach both morning and evening, and an open session of the Sunday school will be held in the afternoon. The primary class will give some numbers on the programme, an orchestra will be in attendance, and Miss Pernice Sewcroft will sing "The Builders." Mr. Bartlett will give an address to the scholars. On Monday evening an anniversary banquet will be held which promises to be of more than usual interest.

At the reception service last Sunday in the James Bay Methodist church 20 new members were received, three by letter and seventeen on profession of faith.

There was an interesting meeting of the James Bay Epworth League last Monday evening when an address was given by Mr. Killegaard, Christian Endeavor vice-president.

Sunday school anniversary services will be held in Centennial Methodist church to-morrow. The Rev. I. W. Williams, provincial secretary of the International Sunday School Association, will preach both morning and evening, and will also give an address at the open session of the school in the afternoon.

The young ladies' Bible class of Centennial church will hold a social gathering next Friday evening.

Rev. C. H. Huestis, M.A., the newly appointed western secretary for the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada, will preach in the Metropolitan Methodist church to-morrow.

The Sunday school orchestra of Metropolitan church will give a concert in the school room next Thursday evening. Miss Logan, Miss Beek, Mr. Brooke, and Mr. Melville will be among the soloists and there will be instrumental solos, besides selections by the orchestra.

The members of the Metropolitan Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society made a canvass of the ladies of the congregation last Thursday and secured 42 new active members, 13 associate members, 11 subscribers to the "Outlook" and 11 subscribers to the "Monthly Letter." Mrs. Brace, the president of the auxiliary, led the band of ladies and the result is very gratifying to those who took part.

The Metropolitan Epworth League are looking forward to a big success with the Rutven MacDonald concert to be held on Monday, May 15th. On Sunday evening, the 14th, Mr. MacDonald and Miss Crawford, will sing at the evening service in the church. Every member of the company has been connected with church choirs and the programme they offer will be eminently suitable for the large auditorium where the concert will be given.

Troop A, Boy Scouts, will give a concert next Tuesday evening in the school room of the Church of Our Lord, Humboldt street.

The rector, Rev. T. W. Gladstone, will conduct the services in the Church of Our Lord to-morrow. In the morning his subject will be "Some Things Agreeable to Our Profession, and Some Things Contrary to the Same." In the evening he will speak on "The Choice of Moses."

Last Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid of the Congregational church held a very successful and pleasant social gathering in the school room of the church. A short programme was rendered during the evening, when Miss Morrison sang a solo, the Misses Hunter gave piano and violin duet, the Misses McIntosh a vocal duet and Mr. H. Davies a piano solo. There was a large company present. The male quartette of the church was to have sung, but Mr. Collins, a member of the quartette was called home to England suddenly on account of his mother's illness, and this item had to be taken off the programme.

A handsome debate will be held on Monday evening under the auspices of

VICTORIA DISTRICT METHODIST MEETING

Ministers and Laymen Approve of an Aggressive Evangelistic Movement

The annual meeting of the Victoria District of the Methodist church was held in the league room of Metropolitan church last Wednesday and Thursday. In the morning the ministerial session was held and the examination of the probationers of the district was conducted by the chairman, Rev. A. E. Roberts. John G. Gibson was continued on probation for another year, and Thomas Keyworth, having passed successfully the full conference course, was recommended to the conference to be received into full connection and ordained. H. L. Morrison and R. D. Hall were also continued on probation. A very interesting incident took place when the case of the superannuated ministers was discussed. The meeting recommended that the Rev. Wm. Sheridan be continued in the superannuation relation, and as Mr. Sheridan was present he was asked to speak in very earnest words Mr. Sheridan spoke of the experiences of sixty years in the Methodist church and of his desire for the increased influence for good of all the Methodist ministers. He urged upon all the need for more earnest prayer and work and spoke strongly of the need for aggressive evangelism. The meeting afterwards passed a resolution along the lines of the address. The resolution was moved by Rev. T. E. Holling, seconded by Rev. A. N. Miller, and was as follows: "Resolved, that this ministerial session of the Victoria district expresses its hearty approval of the action of the general conference in appointing a large and representative committee on evangelism. We have noted with satisfaction the suggestions and recommendations made by the committee in regard to personal and public endeavors in all departments of the church's life for the salvation of souls. We express our conviction that not only by special services, but also in the ordinary meetings and particularly the Sunday evening services it would be to the advantage of the church if the claims of Jesus Christ as a personal and present Saviour were urged with loving earnestness and persistent appeal followed by an opportunity to those under conviction to accept Jesus Christ. We recommend a return, as far as possible, to the practice of an after service on Sunday evenings. We also urge that not only ministers but the members of the church do the work of an evangelist. To this end we strongly advise our people to cultivate the art of personal work, and to appreciate the privilege and responsibility of bringing those within the sphere of their influence to receive Jesus both as Saviour and Lord."

This resolution was afterwards presented to the general session, when the laymen were present and were heartily agreed to. The laymen present were A. Leo, H. T. Knott, W. B. Deaville, C. Brown, J. Dilworth, T. James and J. B. Knowles. The reports presented by the various churches of the district were most encouraging. There was a net gain of 224 in the membership of the church, and the financial reports showed a marked increase over last year. This was especially so in the matter of missionary pledges, the amount given last year being more than doubled this year.

A committee on evangelism was appointed, consisting of the chairman of the district, together with Rev. T. E. Holling, Rev. J. A. Wood, Messrs. Lee and Deaville.

According to the provision of Discipline, a district missionary committee was appointed and the following were named: Chairman of the district, Revs. Miller, Wood, Henderson, and Messrs. Lee, Mitchell and Brown.

The matter of church union was discussed and the resolution submitted by Rev. T. E. Holling passed with only one dissenting voice. The resolution read as follows: "Resolved, that we press our satisfaction with the proposed basis of union between the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches, and we are convinced that the consummation of the proposed union would be advantageous to the interests of the kingdom of God in the Dominion of Canada."

In connection with the district of the Young People's meeting was held on Wednesday evening, addressed by Rev. S. T. Bartlett, general secretary of the Young People's work of the Methodist church. On Thursday afternoon a most interesting district Sunday school institute was held, when Rev. A. N. Miller gave a report of the work of the schools during the past year. Mrs. Scates, of James Bay Sunday school, gave a most interesting address on primary work. By request Mrs. Scates will prepare this for publication in the church papers. Rev. S. T. Bartlett conducted a round-table conference which brought forth a lively discussion on Sunday school methods.

On Thursday evening a meeting was held in the interests of Sunday school work, and Mr. Bartlett's address was

FOR GOOD HEALTH WITH GOOD APPETITE AND GOOD DIGESTION

It is a far, far better thing than most people imagine to be able to relish food, and have no pains, no headaches, no biliousness, no constipation to follow. It means that your digestion is good, and that your stomach, liver, and bowels are in working order. It means that you are fit and well. But if those organs are NOT in working order, and you have lost your appetite, lost your powers of digestion, lost your health, you need the herbal tonic, Mother Seigel's Syrup, the greatest stomach and liver tonic in existence!

TAKE MOTHER SEIGEL'S SYRUP

By toning and strengthening the stomach, and gently stimulating the action of the liver and bowels, Mother Seigel's Syrup restores good appetite, good digestion, and good health in a truly remarkable manner. Madame Desaulniers, Saint Alexis, Maskinonge Co., Quebec, says:—"I had dyspepsia, dizziness, violent headaches, constipation, bad breath, and acute pains in the chest after meals. My sleep was irregular. But Mother Seigel's Syrup is a splendid remedy and succeeded, in three months, in ridding me of my troubles entirely." Try it now!

PRINCE RUPERT WATER SUPPLY.

Prince Rupert, May 5.—As a result of his investigations so far, Mr. Thompson, Seattle's chief engineer, is very favorably impressed with Prince Rupert and her prospective water supply. He came here to report on the water supply but so enthusiastic has he become in studying the engineering questions that present themselves here that it would appear to be a difficult matter for him to decide where he will stop.

As to the water supply, he pointed out that basing the consumption for domestic purposes on the ratio used by St. Paul, which was higher than many cities, there was available enough water for a population of one million people here. This he pointed out meant that when the supply was tapped the water question was solved for practically all time for the city. When Prince Rupert's population would be the million mark he felt it would be easy to get additional water supplies. Of the water he speaks in the highest terms.

It is reported that Mr. Thompson is likely to make a report upon the power question as it is affected by the Woodworth Lake proposition. He is reported to be very favorably impressed with this aspect and it is expected will be able to promise a very considerable power plant at quite a small cost to the city.

DRIVING ACCIDENT.

Kelowna, May 5.—A Temple, solicitor, met with a serious accident by which his left knee was badly dislocated and he sustained a number of painful bruises. While driving with his sister towards the South Kelowna, one of the wheels of the buggy struck a small stump, the shock throwing him out of his seat against the opposite wheel, through which his arm and leg passed, and before the horse could be pulled up he had received the injuries mentioned, which will confine him to his house for several weeks.

RESENTS ACTION OF MAYOR LEE

Member of New Westminster Civic Finance Committee Resigns

New Westminster, May 5.—As the result of the action of Mayor Lee taking full responsibility in selling the city bonds to what he averred was the best market, Alderman Bryson, in no uncertain voice, has condemned the action of the chief executive of Westminster, and resigned as a member of the finance committee.

The original bonds issued totalled $497,000, but this sum was smaller than the London market brokers would handle. To make up the difference, Mayor Lee added $145,000 of the new debentures for flotation on the English money market, bringing it to a total of $642,000. These were placed through James Stinson & Co. of Toronto, for 93.75 per cent., this being considered an exceptionally good figure.

Mr. Bryson said the committee which was supposed to look after the sale of the city had been slotted in that transaction, inasmuch as no mention was made by the mayor as to what steps he would take. There were many things, Alderman Bryson said, which had been done without the opinion of the finance committee being asked. This was not the right way to conduct the city's business.

Alderman Henley reminded the mayor that he had not sold new stock to any brokers. What had been done was simply to tag on a sum, passed by the bylaw after being defeated at a previous vote, to the larger amount also passed earlier by the ratepayers. Had this been a new issue he would assuredly have, as in the past, brought the whole matter to the notice of the financial committee.

A question of putting the last issue on the market on its own, but with the additional sum, thus bringing it up to the figure required by brokers in London before they would take a parcel of money sufficient to show either them or the city any profit. If he was deserving of censure in the stand he had taken, the alderman was perfectly within his rights to do so, but he contended that all he had done was fair and above board and had been carried out as prescribed in the bylaws.

After a motion endorsing the action of the mayor had been moved and seconded by Alderman Gray and Campbell respectively, Alderman Johnston stated that the reply from the chair was to him satisfactory, and while he had come prepared to follow in the footsteps of Alderman Bryson and resign from the finance committee, he felt that as the bylaws permitted the mayor to take the action which he had, there was nothing further to be said on that point.

Alderman Bryson alone voted against the motion.

RIVER STEAMER WRECKED.

Ashcroft, May 5.—The automobile service on the Cariboo road has recommenced in earnest.

The steamer Chico, which was launched at Quesnel Saturday and will go down with the running ice to Soda Creek. It will be a couple of days before the trip to Fort George can be attempted for the ice from Fort George and Cottonwood canyons has not entirely cleared.

The steamer Chico, which met with a serious accident during the close of last season at the mouth of the Blackwater river, was wrecked beyond repair last week while Capt. Ritchie was making the Cottonwood canyon in the attempt to bring her down to Quesnel for further repairs. Something went wrong with the engines and boilers, and the captain was unable to control his boat. She struck hard against the shore ice and went to pieces. This will be a serious loss to the river navigation this season for the Chico was the sturdy pioneer craft that ran to Fraser lake and Tete Jaune cache last summer, and was expected to take care of the winter work this season. The little steamer Fort Fraser will now be placed on the Upper Fraser river runs instead.

NEW WESTMINSTER Y. M. C. A.

New Westminster, May 5.—Within the next few days an acting secretary for the Westminster Y. M. C. A. will be appointed, his duties to commence immediately. As the building is nearing completion and the time for the opening is drawing close, the need of a man who will devote his whole time to the work is being felt more and more, as the calls upon the committee in charge of the preliminary work are getting more insistent.

J. D. Kennedy is at the present time drawing up the articles of incorporation. These will be registered before the end of the present month, it being the intention of the committee in charge to hand over the building to a duly incorporated Westminster Y. M. C. A. in June or July. When the building is transferred from the present trustees the concern will be free of debt.

The original plan of the Y. M. C. A. building has been altered to some extent. When the structure is completed it will be three stories on Royal avenue, with a pressed brick and stone facing.

INFLAMMATION AND PAIN

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I was troubled for a long time with inflammation, pains in my side, sick headaches and nervousness. I had taken so many medicines that I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. A friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to health. I have no more pain, my nerves are stronger and I can do my own work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after everything else had failed, and I recommend it to other suffering women."

—Mrs. Wm. Skals, 608 W. Howard St., Creston, Iowa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

NEW MANAGER FOR B. C. COPPER COMPANY

E. G. Warren Appointed Successor to J. E. McAllister, Who Goes to New York

Phoenix, May 5.—J. E. McAllister, who has been general manager of the British Columbia Copper company for the past seven years, leaves shortly for New York City, where he will become a member of a firm of consulting engineers in mining. He will still be connected with the British Columbia Copper in the capacity of consulting engineer and will visit the property every three months. He will be succeeded as general manager by E. G. Warren.

During Mr. McAllister's seven years' management of the British Columbia Copper company it has enjoyed a steady and healthy growth. Its properties have increased seven times; its expanding resources have been of an equal ratio and still growing, while the corporation in on a second dividend-paying basis. And while he has had able assistants, Mr. McAllister himself is responsible in no small way for the progressive strides the company has made.

His departure from the active sphere of Boundary mining, which he has done so much to develop, will be a matter of general regret and his many friends will wish him success in his new field.

Mr. Warren, who succeeds Mr. McAllister as general manager, is receiving congratulations of his many friends on his promotion. Mr. Warren has been smaller superintendent for a number of years and has kept in close touch with the operations of the company, frequently filling the position of general manager during Mr. McAllister's absence.

FIRE DESTROYS STORE.

Prince Rupert, May 5.—The new grocery store just established by Messrs. Stalker & Wells at Hays Cove avenue was completely gutted by fire the other night. Alfred Wells who was sleeping in an apartment above the store had a narrow escape from being suffocated. Awakened by the smoke which poured in dense clouds into his room, he escaped only just in time. Reaching the telephone, he had just got a call through to the fire brigade when the instrument was cut off by the melting of the insulation. In a moment the whole interior of the store was on fire. Mr. Wells had no time to save even a suit of clothes. All his effects were burnt. The cause of the outbreak is unknown.

About $900 damage was done to the building.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

Vancouver, May 5.—"Accidental death" was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the inquest over the remains of Simon Yousef. According to the evidence, the deceased was helping in blasting stumps in Hastings Township, on Monday, shortly after 12 o'clock, after the rest of the workmen had gone for luncheon, deceased and the powder man had blown a stump. A part of the stump was thrown into the air and although the powder man had called to deceased to run back, the latter must have lost his head and although he was able to see the stump in the air he did not move, and was struck, being killed instantly.

Vancouver, May 5.—The grand jury returned no bill in the case of Martin Hansen, accused of attacking with intent to murder Madame Hulse. Hansen was formally discharged and the case was dropped.

R. L. BORDEN ON RECIPROCITY BILL

OUTLINES ATTITUDE OF CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Says Men From West Must Be Called Into Federal Arena

Ottawa, May 6.—R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, entertained at dinner in the parliamentary restaurant last evening Premier McBride, of British Columbia; Premier Hazen, of New Brunswick; Hon. William J. Bowser of British Columbia; Hon. R. Rogers of Manitoba, the Conservative members of parliament and several representatives of the Conservatives from the provinces. Mr. Borden took advantage of the occasion to set forth the attitude of the Conservative party in regard to the reciprocity agreement. He said:

"pledged the honor of Canada, and tell me whether it does not absolutely destroy any prospect of consummating the policy of reciprocity within the Empire. If there is any doubt upon this question, let answers be given by a very great statesman, the President of the United States. The man who holds the office has probably greater power than the ruler of any civilized country in the world. He combines in himself powers which under our constitution are vested in the crown and in the prime minister. The high position and remarkable ability and foresight of President Taft require us to give the most profound attention to his view of the effect of our government's action."

"On the 26th of January last, in his message to Congress, he emphasized the statement that Canada is at the parting of ways. As Mr. Foster has well asked: What are the ways to which President Taft alludes? One of the paths is closer relations with the great Empire whose flag floats over us, and the other is the path which leads to closer and closer relations with the United States by means of a trade agreement from which that country excludes the rest of the Empire. But Mr. Taft has been still more definite. In a later utterance, speaking in New York on April 27, he observed in referring to Canada: 'The bond uniting the Dominion with the Mother Country is light and almost imperceptible.' The concluding paragraph of this same speech is, however, of more pregnant importance and demands more serious consideration from every Canadian who stands for the unity of Canada and the integrity of the Empire. Listen to the words of the President of the United States:

"I have said that this was a critical time in the solution of the question of reciprocity. It is a critical time because, unless it is now decided favorably in regard to reciprocity, it is exceedingly probable that no such opportunity will ever again come to the United States. Forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States and to make her a part of the Imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity, with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it now or give it up forever."

"Canada is entitled to know whether Sir Wilfrid Laurier acquiesces in this application of the results of the secret trade agreement which two of his ministers have negotiated."

"President Taft is a statesman of remarkable ability and profound insight. His words have a tremendous significance for Canadians. He affirms with great earnestness that this agreement is to the interest of the United States for the reason that it will prevent the consolidation of the British Empire. He strongly urges that this agreement is to the interest of the United States because it will prevent a creation of a system of mutual trade preferences within the Empire. He emphatically declares that this is the last opportunity for the United States to consummate the trade agreement with Canada which will destroy that policy of inter-imperial preferences to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier pledged himself in the colonial conference of 1902 and the Imperial conference of 1907. No more remarkable statement respecting relations of the mother country and self-governing dominions of this Empire was ever uttered by any statesman. Mr. Taft's position, Sir Wilfrid Laurier might well hesitate about attending the approaching Imperial conference. Will he go to that conference to reaffirm the policy of mutual trade preferences within the Empire while at the same moment he is attempting to drive through parliament an agreement which absolutely destroys the possibility of any such policy?"

"Mr. Taft's utterance is no mere declamation. Its most serious feature is its profound truth. And the most serious and dangerous aspect on the present situation is the apparent determination of the government to drive such an agreement through parliament by force of their numerical majority and deny to the people of Canada any voice upon this, the greatest question that has arisen since Confederation. For this the government has no mandate, and we shall firmly and resolutely oppose to the very end any such despotic attempt."

"But although our government seems insensible of the dangers of the situation which it has created, we have every reason to believe that the country is aroused and that public opinion is greatly disturbed throughout the Dominion."

"Many prominent supporters of the Liberal party have refused to accept the agreement with Washington. These then realize that the government has abandoned the steadfast policy of the last thirty years, that it is beset by international quarrels, that it is no longer able to arouse the enthusiasm of its followers in the country or to unite its supporters in parliament. The Conservative party must remember that under these new conditions it is confronted with great obligations. It must prepare itself to assume power and it must give evidence to the people that it is ready to assume and to discharge with dignity, with honor, and with ability the responsibilities which soon will be placed upon it. Let me say that one of the great principles and policies should be ever in mind. The west and the east of Canada must not be separated by any apparent divergence of interest or by any unfortunate divergence of sentiment. Let us alter but one word in a well-known line and say: 'Oh, east is east, and west is west; but never the twain shall part.'"

"Let us not fail to recognize that henceforth the west of Canada must have more and more influence and a greater voice in parliament and in the cabinet than has heretofore been the case. As strong as is the Conservative party in the House of Commons at the present time, it must call to its councils other strong men from the west and require at no distant day to enter the federal arena. These men, knowing thoroughly the aspirations and needs of western Canada, will give adequate expression to its views in parliament and assure its full influence in the future Conservative governments."

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this."

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

eastern Canada further than to say this:

"From the province of Quebec the Conservative party has but a small representation in the House of Commons. Remember, however, that one hundred and thirty thousand votes were cast for the Liberal-Conservative party in that province. Our party stands to-day for the same principles with which the Conservatives of Quebec had been associated before this federation was constituted. The issue forced upon the country by the mischievous trade compact at Washington will arouse again the enthusiasm and determination of the Quebec Conservatives and assure once more an adequate representation of our party from that province. We expect also in the next parliament of Canada a worthy representation of those, who for many years past have been associated with the Liberal party in this country, but who cannot support the leaders of that party in the issue which has been so unfortunately forced upon the country. Not only in the cities of Canada, but in the rural districts as well, there are thousands of Liberals in whose minds this agreement means disaster for the country, and who will unite with the Conservatives and with all men of good will in releasing this country at the next general election, from the despotism which oppresses it to-day."

THE EVERLASTING WOMAN.

Will Changes in Economic Conditions
Give Women Right to Propose?

Dr. John Jakola, a scientist from Finland, who is now in New York, made the disturbing statement the other day that there are at least 50,000 girls in the metropolis who haven't a ghost of a chance at matrimony.

When pressed to explain and discuss, the doctor put in a saying "if" which turned out to be nothing less than the idea that things would be different if women had the right to propose.

"Nowadays," says the man from Finland, "man only has the right to propose, and I don't know of any other custom that is responsible for more trouble and unhappiness. A girl may love a fellow and he may love her. But, as is many times the case, he is too bashful to propose, and she is compelled to wait."

"What happens? Things go along like this for a while, then the fellow, who is willing and able to run a home becomes a confirmed bachelor or, afraid that he won't get any girl at all, marries some fluff-haired bit of femininity he doesn't like. Such marriages, unfortunately, frequently lead to the divorce courts."

"When the day comes when custom will permit women to propose trouble will vanish from the face of the earth. There will be more happy marriages, and the divorce courts, for lack of business, will be compelled to close up."

"Go west," is the professor's time-worn advice to the multitude of city girls who, he says, are waiting for the right man—in many cases, any man—to pop the question.

"The farm is the natural place for woman," he said. "In Berlin, they have what are known as 'Lowen's Colonies' and I think that something along that line would work wonders here. It is a philanthropic scheme. Women are given tracts of land, in the country. They develop them, sell their crops in the city, and become independent. Then the men follow them, and there are many happy marriages."

"There is another custom in Germany that could be adopted with profit here. In an American city if a young man invites a girl to the theatre he considers it only natural that he should pay all the expenses, and when he set-ties for the tickets, a taxicab and supper there isn't much left of a $10 bill. "In Berlin they work a different system. There a girl asks a young man to go out, and she expects to, and does, pay her share of the expenses."

"Don't you think the men are partly to blame for these conditions?" "No," was his prompt reply. "Girls can't shift the blame to our shoulders. I'll tell you one of the chief reasons why there are not more marriages in a large city."

"Take the successful business girl. When she goes down-town in the morning she is painted and powdered, wears a mass of frills, gigantic picture hat, and strives hard to create the false impression that she is a millionaire's daughter. Is it any wonder that the poor fellow balks? Probably he is making $150 a month, but he figures to himself that if he married he would be able to do little more than keep a wife of this kind in shoes. Of course, the girls would be only too glad to abandon their paint and frills for a three-room flat, but the man doesn't know that, and usually there are no marriages."

Love's Labor Won

Specially Written for the Daily Times

By J. M.

"The spirit knows no bounds nor bars,
On it no shroud of thralldom hangs."

"Oh, yes, of course it's very satisfactory," murmured Mrs. Dalton, as she complacently sipped her tea in the sitting room set apart for the ladies of the district, who periodically assembled to discuss matters connected with the welfare of the neighborhood. "I hope it may turn out so; but, you know, there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip," replied her hostess, the squire's good wife, who possessed a genius for saying malapropos things, as well as for rubbing her friends the wrong way. "But," she hastily added, seeing the ruffled expression on Mrs. Dalton's face, "I congratulate you, and wish them all happiness. When is the wedding to be?"

"In six months," responded Mrs. Dalton, and putting down her cup, mused somewhat, she rose to go, smilingly acknowledging the congratulations of the other visitors who, on this occasion, met at the squire's mansion, ostensibly to sew for the poor of an adjacent village, but in reality to discuss the gossip and scandal of the day.

Certainly the amount of sewing got through was infinitely small when compared with the amount of lingual business disposed of; and it is also true that some spiteful remarks circulated after Mrs. Dalton's departure, to which, to her shame be it said, the squire's wife contributed her quota.

And the cause of all? Simply because pretty Eva Dalton had become engaged to Frank Perry, and the other women were filled with jealousy, the tenth commandment having proved very brittle, for had they not cherished secret hopes and even schemed to get him—the richest and handsomest man in the district—for one of their own daughters, particularly the squire's wife, whose three commonplace girls were obviously destined to a life of single blessedness.

Meanwhile the young couple in whom so much interest centered were wholly unconcerned by it, being, in fact, so much in love with each other that they had no thought to spare for anyone else.

But, unfortunately for them, it was not only feminine spite that was arrayed against them; there was a far more serious obstacle in their path in the person of Sidney Lowe, the solicitor of this pretty town in Northern Manitoba—where miles out of which was situated the large estate owned by Frank Perry—who was also deeply in love with Eva.

This was not a matter for surprise, for she possessed an indomitable charm, more potent than beauty, that subtle elusive charm which is irresistible and draws men like a magnet. Whatever it was that gave Eva that alluring charm, it is nevertheless true that it had proved the undoing of Sidney; he had pleaded his cause with all the legal acumen he could, but, needless to say, had been refused. Still, he was determined that no power on earth should prevent him winning Eva.

He was consumed by a fury of hate towards Frank—his successful rival—and as he strolled down the road towards the river was meditating over projects dark and sinister by means of which he could part Eva and Frank.

It was a lovely summer evening; after a thunderstorm, the hills, the blue sky, the foliage all clean-washed and pure; the freshness of everything after the heat of the previous days seemed to infuse new life and hope, but in Sidney's passion-torn heart the beauties of nature found no response.

As he turned the bend of the river, running placidly along, gleaming in the golden rays of the setting sun, he saw the two who were filling his thoughts standing on the bridge gazing down at the river. Such a tempest of rage shook him as he noted their lover-like attitude that he would gladly have killed them both. Walking quickly past, he turned on them such a malignant look as to startle Eva, who, shuddering as she intercepted it, whispered:

"Oh, Frank, he frightens me; did you notice his awful look?"

"Dearest," replied her lover, "he can't hurt you."

"But you don't know what he threatened when I—" she stopped, blushing.

"Yes, I know," assented Frank. "He wanted you badly; I don't wonder at it," looking adoringly at her charming, sparkling face. "Poor devil," he finished, compassionately, "I know how I should feel had you loved him instead of me. But what did he say to terrify you so, dear me?"

"He swore," replied Eva slowly, "that he would have me by fair or foul; that no one else should ever live to call me wife; and I fear he will try to do you some treacherous injury."

"Now, dear," laughed Frank, reassuringly, "don't you think I am a match for him, so don't worry, little one. As for you, don't you know," he finished passionately, "that I would give my life to protect you from harm?"

So Eva comforted and happy in her belief in her lover's strength and protection, the couple presently turned their steps towards Eva's home, which stood on the outskirts of the town—a pretty and roomy house, standing in several acres of ground, with a lovely garden and orchard, through which rippled a creek of crystal clearness. The place belonged to her mother. Eva was her only child; her husband had died when Eva was a baby.

Three months later the ladies of the district met again in the "reserved sitting room" of the Squire's mansion. On this occasion—though Mrs. Dalton was not present in person—she was occupying the minds of all, and needless to say, having a rest while tongues were busy, for their hostess had imparted to them with much gusto the news that the engagement between Eva and Frank was broken off.

"My words have come true," she was saying, with the ill-concealed enjoyment that "I told you so" always seems to afford the average free-tongued gossip-monger. "I told Mrs. Dalton there was many a slip," and now Frank has gone off as no one knows where, and she concluded, triumphantly, "Eva is losing her good looks."

"They say he has gone to England," one of the visitors remarked.

"Yes," responded the squire's wife, "and left her lamenting. Well, he soon tired of her," she added, spitefully, "but men always do when a girl runs after them."

"Oh, Mrs. Hobbs," exclaimed another lady, "Eva is not that sort of girl, and I'm sure Frank Perry wasn't stinky in the love he gave her; anyone could see that, and I am sure we will not be far wrong if we can only be charitable enough to admit it."

The hostess smiled sourly and tossed her head.

"I hope I don't need reminding of duty of being charitable," she tartly replied, stung by the reproof, "but really it was apparent to anyone who chose to see how she and her mother both hunted the poor man."

At this juncture tea was brought in, when the gossip took another turn, and shortly after the visitors took their leave.

On the same afternoon Sidney Lowe, having closed his office, was taking his usual walk riverwards, pondering over many things as he went along. He was hopeful that he would gain his heart's desire; things so far were satisfactory. Eva and Frank were actually parted, and not a soul suspected him of having a hand in it. Eva, it was true, avoided him, and, as he well knew, feared him, but time, he told himself, would alter that. "Why," he muttered angrily, "does she alone so disdain me?" For the other girls in the town were not at all backward in flattering him; his vanity—a matter which for certain encouraged him to cultivate an abnormally high opinion of himself.

Certainly he was versatile as to accomplishments of a kind, and was alike in his element running a euchre party, planning a picnic or dance, organizing tin-ketting demonstrations for newly-married plebeians, playing leapfrog or refereeing canine warfare—of which he was an enthusiastic exponent.

He wondered to himself how the town had got on before he shed the light of his countenance. It is true he sometimes advised the Indians on the financial prospects of their investments, defended drunks, vagrants and petty thieves, and was continuously boasting of how, single-handed, he could drive four automobiles abreast through every law, written and non-written, within the dominion.

An extravagant waste of bombast, however, and not very infrequently an equally extravagant waste of dollars were the only results of any consequence.

But to return to Sidney, who, as he walked along, absorbed in his thoughts, suddenly caught sight of Eva in front of him; he hastened his steps and accosted her with a smiling face.

"Where is Frank?" he asked abruptly, without speaking, then said abruptly, "Where is Frank?" He started back and stammered, "I—I—I don't know, Miss Dalton."

"Oh, yes, you do," she replied, with her eyes full of sombre fire, "or at least you know why he has gone away. Tell me where he has gone?"

"On my honor, I don't know where he is," Sidney replied, "surely you are more likely to know?"

"Don't take the trouble to try and deceive me. Do you think," she went on passionately, "that I don't know who has separated us? You hated Frank. No," as he was about to protest, "you shall hear me; my woman's intuition tells me that you have done this thing, but beware, Sidney Lowe, for as sure as there is a heaven above us, so surely shall you suffer for it," and before he had time to recover his equanimity she had turned and swiftly left him.

He stood as though rooted to the spot. "By jove," he muttered, as a gust of passion shook him, "how glorious her anger made her look!"

Setting his teeth he said, "I must win her. But whatever made her suspect me of parting them? Of course, it's all bluff about induction; I was so careful over it, too. Hang it all!" he muttered savagely as he, too, turned his steps homeward.

Time moved along, as it will do, whether we are glad or sad, heart-whole or heart-broken. Two years had passed since Frank went away, and much had happened during their passage. They had changed Eva from a light-hearted winsome girl to an equally fascinating, if sadder, woman. No direct news of Frank Perry had come to Eva, but he had, through agents, let his estate, and was, rumor said, living in London. Sidney still cherished his reckless passion for Eva, but by acting warily, and appearing as if he were indifferent to her, she, though still devoted to him in her heart, was coldly civil to him when she met him, which, somehow, by his coyness, she was always doing, thereby giving the gossip of whom Mrs. Hobbs spoke at times to the fore—much food for talk.

"Oh, yes," she's setting her cap at Sidney now she's lost Frank," sniffed the Squire's wife, with a toss of her head.

But, ignoring them all, Eva calmly went on her way, and though her heart cried out persistently for her lover, none but her mother guessed it, for she was too high-spirited and proud to show her sorrow to the world.

A new interest had arisen for Eva during the weary months that had followed Frank's departure; she had taken to her pen, and out of the anguish of her soul had developed great talent as a writer. Her first book had been accepted and published, and, wonderful to say, had at once made her fame as an authoress.

She kept her success a secret from everyone, writing under a nom-de-plume, for she had a horror of the sycophantic flattery that she knew would be showered upon her if her fame were known.

But though a successful woman she was not a happy one, her life being one big ache for her lover, and ever she carried in her consciousness the words of his letter—that was his only farewell to her—"I know," he wrote, "that you have been false to me; that, though you professed to love me, you really only accepted me on account of my accrued money, for all the time your love was given to another, to Sidney Lowe, whom you pretended to fear and dislike. Well, I leave you free to marry him. I love you even now too well to stand in the way of your happiness; but," he concluded, "you have ruined my life and my faith in the purity and truth of womanhood, and I hope never to see your face again. It will be useless for you to write, for I shall return any letter from you unopened."

That black treachery had done its work was obvious; to find out how it had been managed seemed an impossible task. That Sidney Lowe was the black-hearted villain she believed, but had no proof. Still, in spite of all, she was not utterly hopeless, for she did not believe that love such as hers would be allowed to go to waste; also, she had faith that time would right things if only patience were allowed her perfect work. She often quoted to herself Tennyson's words: "My faith is large in time, and that which shapes it to some perfect end, and which comforted her in the shape of a letter forwarded through her publisher, addressed, of course, to her pen name—Beatrice Bardon—and the writer was Frank. Such a thrill of joy swept over her as she recognized his writing, and, taking her hat, she went down the garden to be alone.

It was spring time, the orchard was a mass of pink and white blossoms, the willows down by the creek showed a lacy of translucent green; everywhere were perfume and beauty, the daffodils nodding golden heads to the glorious sunshine, violets made a riot of purple-scented loveliness in the borders, and the pulsing joy of universal life thrived through all; one could almost see the grass growing in its vivid green richness, and the blue of the sky was repeated in deeper shades on the far-off ranges.

Eva felt it all thrilling through her as she opened her precious letter. Frank wrote, of course, as a stranger, and after apologizing for the liberty, he went on to tell her of the deep impression her book made on him. He was, he said, on the staff of one of the London papers, and it had fallen to him to review her work. The beautiful descriptions of scenery in it had brought his native land before his eyes, for he, too, was a Canadian.

Eva smiled. It seemed strange his writing as a stranger. The letter proved, however, the noble character of the heroine was a revelation to me, and has brought back my old faith and reverence for woman, which I had thought was killed for ever. No one," he finished, "can read your book and not be the better for its ennobling ideals."

Eva twice read the letter through, deeply touched by the tribute to her talents from him she loved, and then sat pondering deeply for some time. At last she made up her mind, and rising, went to find her mother, who was sewing in the morning-room of the house. Without a word Eva gave her the letter to read. A glad light came into Mrs. Dalton's face as she read it. "Oh, Eva, how very glad I am," she exclaimed, "all will now be well. You will ask Frank for an explanation?"

"No, mother," Eva replied. "I shall answer his letter, of course, though not as myself, but as Beatrice Bardon, the authoress, for I do not feel the time has yet come to ask for an explanation. But I intend to let events take their course, for I am certain that, without any of my seeking, before long the truth will come out; I feel it in my bones and am satisfied to abide by the result."

Her mother's face fell, for it had been a sore disappointment to her when the engagement was broken off and Mrs. Hobbs's innuendoes over it had stung her deeply.

"But Frank will know who you are when you write," she objected.

"No, I've planned it all out. I'll write from Doris MacDougall's address in Winnipeg,"—Doris was an old school-fellow—"and she will forward the letter to him and his to me. The address will give him no clue, because Doris has moved since he went away."

"But, Eva, won't he know your writing?" No, because, you know, I've changed it a lot lately; it's lost in style—and she laughed—"but it has gained in legibility, and that suits the printers."

"Perhaps you're wise, Eva. At any rate, it will be more dignified to wait than to sue for an explanation. But,"—she sighed as she folded up her sewing and left the room. And so began a correspondence in which, as it grew more intimate, each revealed to the other their true natures and the deepest thoughts and aspirations of their hearts.

Meanwhile Frank, lonely in his London lodgings, was working hard at his journalism, not for the sake of gain, but to try and stifle memory, which was a torture. The more he tried to forget Eva—the clearer her image grew, and the longing to see her, to once more hold her in his arms, became well-nigh intolerable. Yet she had deceived him, and was now, he supposed, another man's wife. At that thought he cursed fate with all his might.

While he was in this frame of mind he was laid low by a bad attack of influenza, which left him in an unusually depressed condition, and gradually the idea crept into his brain to end it all. He battled against the feeling for a while, but in his weak state he had not the power to resist it.

"What," he argued with himself, "is the good of living?" He had nothing to look forward to or hope for. Life was a dreary waste without love to sweeten it; his work ceased to have any interest for him in his morbid state of mind. "Better, then," he said to himself, "to pass out of life. No one will miss or regret me. And the means? Well, there are plenty to choose from," he cynically thought, for it's true enough that—

Nature trusted to man's care. But one way of transmitting life. Yet gave she not, for they who dare, A thousand means to end the strife.

And in his wretchedness he got up from the couch on which he had been lying, and with his mind made up to bear his misery no longer, went into the bedroom. Taking out his revolver, he was in the act of placing it to his temple, when his arm fell nervelessly by his side, for he heard Eva's voice, close at hand, calling to him.

"Frank! Frank!" she called, in a tone of agonized entreaty. He felt her presence, or her spirit, near him so real that the room faded from his sight, and once more he was by the riverside at home. He could see the sun glinting on the water; the birds were calling to one another; the scent of the wild clematis filled the air, and Eva was with him as of yore.

How long or how short a time the spell lasted he never knew, but that the vision was real he never doubted, and that it had been sent to save him from self-murder also he was sure. From came forth sane, and began to mend, that strange, inexplicable happening he but the strangest part of it to him, was yet to come, for some hours later, the maid-of-all-work brought him up a cable from Canada, which on opening he found was from Beatrice Bardon, and ran as follows:

"Am troubled; afraid you are in danger; reply."

His amazement was great. How, he marvelled, could she, a stranger, know of his dire distress? If it had been Eva, now, who called—Eva who, as he now firmly believed, came to him in spirit to save him, but a stranger? It was inexplicable. He cabled back, however: "Danger averted; thanks; please write."

Of course it was Eva who had called to him. She had on that day gone down to the river, and while sitting on a log, had been suddenly overwhelmed with a sense of awful danger threatening Frank. In her agony she had called to every man and after that for a brief time had become lost to her surroundings. When she came to herself, feeling weak, she hurried home and cabled to him, so vivid was her belief in his danger, that suspense was intolerable.

Many letters passed between Eva and Frank after that tragic episode, letters that seemed to draw them into so close a union of spirit that in one Frank wrote: "It often seems to me that your presence is with me—almost you are by my side—and always, too, your personality is so familiar, so dear. I hope you will pardon my presumption in saying this; but it is so all-compelling the influence you have over me. I wonder do you know it? But I feel that you must, it does not," he went on, "seem possible to think of you as a stranger. No, I cannot imagine you as unknown. But how foolish you will think me; and yet I feel I must tell you of your influence; surely," he insisted, "you must be aware of it, for did you not warn me in my hour of need? And your voice, too, was familiar. I am beginning to have strange thoughts as to your identity."

In his next letter he spoke of his longing for home, and Eva's heart gave a great leap, for she knew the end was in sight; and that he would not be able to keep away from her much longer. He wrote: "Now I long for home, for the freedom and space—one feels so cramped and stifled here—for the sunshine, the blue sky, the scent of the rain-washed earth, the pungent smell of the maple and holly; yes, and for a day in the forest, for a sight of the rosy-flushed, purple-hazed hills, mist-wreathed at morn and at sunset—for the gullies and falls, the waving fronds of the maiden-hair ferns. By the way," he went on, "if one wants to see maiden-hair ferns here one has to go to the glass-houses at Kew or some such place, and how poor seem the few specimens there to the lavishness of our fern-filled gorges in Manitoba. Yesterday," he continued, "I was strolling—

The sum of human knowledge—all that mankind has thought, done or achieved—all of the past experience of humanity that has survived the trial of time and the ordeal of service and is preserved as the useful knowledge of to-day. Of the human race and its endowment of persons, histories, languages, literatures, arts, sciences, religions, philosophies, laws, industries, and of the things and ideas connected with these—all is included that is relevant and everything explained that is explainable. In brief, to borrow an illustration from the engineer, the contents of The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica constitute a cross section of the trunk of the tree of knowledge as it stood in the year 1910.

Any reader who has not yet received particulars of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica may obtain illustrated prospectus (40 pp.) 56 specimen pages (printed on India paper, to show the attractive character of the work in this popular form), and order form giving the present low rates and terms of purchase, by applying to The Cambridge University Press, Royal Bank Building, 10-12 King Street East, Toronto.

The present occasion involves no more than the making up of one's mind that the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is worth having, and the decision to examine into the details of the offer without delay. The completion of the 11th Edition cannot be regarded as other than a significant achievement, which demands the attention of all intelligent persons. It consists of 28 volumes and Index, 28,000 pages, 40,000 articles—a work so vast that the making of it, before a single copy was sold, cost $1,150,000; a work produced by the collaboration of 1,500 among the highest authorities in every branch of knowledge and every field of practical specialization. Many years of use can draw upon only a fraction of the contents of a library in which forty million words are the condensed result of a fresh inquiry into every development of research, experiment and invention. The version of the Encyclopaedia Britannica which is about to be displaced by the new edition dates back to 1875, when the first volume appeared. During all the intervening years no fresh work of reference has covered the same ground, yet the foundations of knowledge have undergone a vast transformation. In fact, the editors of the new 11th Edition base upon an analysis of the index the estimate that the new work contains twice as much information as did the other.

To grasp at first thought the varied utility of so vast and original a work is impossible. To consider the most obvious uses which any intelligent reader will make of it is to look ahead for years.

Yet, unless the question of the price to be paid is altogether disregarded, the decision to examine the details of the offer with the idea of becoming a subscriber on the most favorable terms possible must be immediate.

in the announcements that have appeared in this and other magazines and in the daily press throughout the Dominion is to tell the Canadian people exactly what the new edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is, and in describing its distinctive new features, and its improvements upon previous editions, to invite public interest to the successful completion of a vast educational undertaking, a fresh exploration of the whole field of human knowledge and its presentation in an orderly and intelligible manner, not for the use of students merely, but of all readers.

The Cambridge University Press having assumed control of a book which deserves the widest possible distribution, its cheapness was an essential factor of the undertaking. The last completely new edition, the 9th, had been sold at $7.50 a volume (cloth). To place the new Eleventh Edition, however, within reach of the greatest number of persons could best be accomplished by naming, before publication, the lowest price that was possible without disregarding the question of profits. Subscriptions in advance of publication are usually called for in order that funds thus obtained may be used in producing a book. In the present case no payment is now desired, but early subscribers are, on the contrary, offered a substantial premium in the form of a special temporary concession in price. The Syndics of the University Press are satisfied that, in respect of cheapness, no publication is comparable with the 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica at the "advance" price.

for the New Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica are hereby advised that, complete publication of this work having been reached, the concession allowed in return for advance-of-publication subscriptions, but without immediate payments, will be definitely withdrawn from May 31st, when a new schedule of higher prices will have effect, both in this country and in England.

The prices set out on the order form below are those obtaining before publication. These prices will cease to be operative from May 31st, when a new and higher schedule will come into force. Delivery has already begun, and is being made as fast as printers and binders can complete their work and the books can be shipped from England. Those who have convinced themselves that the work is one they should possess are urged to fill in the order form at the foot of this page, and post it promptly to Toronto, so that there may be the least possible delay in receiving their sets.

SOME FACTS OF RECENT SCIENCE

New Encyclopaedia Contains Much Information Published for the First Time

(Sir E. Ray Lankester in New York Times.)

In view of the great mass of writings upon popular science which appear from week to week throughout the world, and especially in English-speaking countries, it seems extraordinary that an encyclopaedia prepared by authoritative writers should reveal much that is altogether new.

The complete freshness of many of the articles which I have been examining in the forthcoming new Encyclopaedia Britannica lies, however, in no such element of prematurity or conjecture, but in the circumstance that information is for the first time made accessible to the public.

In the selections from this great mass of new information which I am offering to the readers of the New York Times, it has been my endeavor to choose, so far as possible, subjects of popular interest, which can be explained in plain language.

The chapter on "Adulteration" alone has the most recent and reliable data from recent experimentation.

All lump sugar, and sometimes flour and rice as well, are colored with ultramarine to get rid of the natural yellowness, just as the laundress uses the bluebag to whiten linen. But those who buy direct the yellow Demerara sugar for cooking, in order that they may obtain the sweetest and most genuine product, obtain a sugar colored with chloride of tin, because with modern methods of manufacture there is not the adhering molasses, which formerly made cane sugar a rich yellow, and of course in the case of beet sugar there is naturally but little color.

The proverbial "sanding" of sugar is apparently a myth, although crushed marble was not long ago found in a consignment of sugar sent to England from Germany.

Butter offers the greatest opportunity for adulteration, because its composition is so intricate and so variable, even when it is quite genuine, that analysts have the worst of it in their ceaseless struggles to protect the public against "business methods."

As margarine is the commonest adulterant in butter, attempts have been made to "mark" all margarine so that chemical tests would reveal its presence whenever it was used in butter.

In Germany, Belgium and Sweden, the authorities forbid the making of margarine (other than for export).

LOVE'S LABOR LOST

ing down Albemarle street, and turned into the little arcade, and in a flower shop there were some branches of golden wattle blossom. I went in to buy some, to have a bit of Canada in my rooms, but when I asked for wattle the girl stared at me in surprise, till I showed her what I wanted. 'Oh,' she said, 'that is mimosa and comes from the south of France.' Well, I answered her, 'never mind where it comes from, or what you call it; I have known it as wattle all my life, and please give me some.' I think she fancied I was a bit mad; however, I carried my precious wattle to my lodgings and dreamed of home all the evening.

His next letter seemed to bring him nearer still to Eva. He wrote: 'As I was passing through the city yesterday I went into St. Paul's. It is one of the wonderful things in London to go in one moment out of the great city of the streets into the calm of the sanctuary, where the noise of the traffic sounds only like the far-away murmur of the sea. While sitting in there a sort of vision came over me. I was by the river at home. I could see it so clearly, the one bank rising sheer from the water's edge, clothed with dense myrtle, with ferns drooping low over the edge, the other bank sloping gently up to green fields, daisies, and the cattle were lazily chewing the cud. I could see the wild lilac bushes, where the wrens and firetails were nesting. I could smell the musk and saffron, and I seemed to see the track winding through the bush, up, ever up, bordered with brown reeds, and the big boulders covered with green and brown mosses; and the stillness and peace of it all. Ah, how I long for it amid the bustle and rush of London life.'

'I suppose it was the contrast of the peace in the cathedral to the turmoil outside that gave me the vision—call it fancy if you will; to me it was real while it lasted. I feel,' he continued, 'that I must come home. I cannot stand it much longer, the home-sickness, the longing, but, above and before all, I want to come back to solve a puzzle that so haunts me! Why, you, whom I suppose I have never seen in the flesh, should so influence me that I cannot believe you a stranger! Can it be, the letter went on, rather incoherently, 'that you are—' (here something was erased). 'But no; I must be mad; I am sure you will think so. I must come home,' he reiterated. 'I love my work, and don't like leaving it, but I shall make arrangements to come, at any rate for a holiday, and that soon.'

Three years had passed since Frank went away. Eva's second book had come out, which was even a greater success than the first, and she went on her way serenely happy, for she knew the time of waiting was nearly over, when her faith, and patience, and her love would be rewarded.

But one more ordeal awaited her. A yachting picnic had been arranged for Dominion Day, and Sidney Lowe was to be of the party. In fact, he had arranged it. He had appeared very strange in his manner, and rumor was busy with his name. It was said he talked at random, and some even hinted at drink as the cause; but it was not that altogether; it was his unbridled passion that was to prove his downfall. Eva had not cared much to go to the picnic, but had been persuaded to do so. All had gone off well on the day; the weather had been lovely, and Eva had really enjoyed the trip; but as they were returning home Sidney, who had seemed very moody and erratic all day, came to where she was standing alone, leaning over the rail gazing at the silver track marked by the moon on the water. After a few aimless remarks he burst into a passionate avowal of his love. Eva, who was really terrified by his vehemence and the wild look in his blazing eyes, shrank away from him. This seemed but to accentuate his fury, and catching her roughly in his arms, he stifled her cry for help by pressing kisses on her lips.

'I will have you,' he muttered, 'if I have to go down to hell for you. I parted you and Frank Perry,' and he laughed the horrible laugh of a madman. 'Yes,' he went on, 'I wrote a letter. I copied your hand-writing, that was enough. The letter was written to me, but posted to Frank by mistake, of course.' Again he laughed. 'Frank was in Vancouver at the time, as you no doubt remember, and in this letter you, Eva, confessed your love for me, and that you were only 'monkey-ing' with him until such time as you could lay hold of his money. You were very loving, too, to me,' and he looked horribly at her. 'Ah, it was all so infernally easy,' and again that horrible laugh rang out.

Eva had ceased to struggle while he was speaking, so eager was she to hear, at last, the explanation of the treachery that had parted her from Frank Perry; but as he stopped breathlessly, she wrenched herself free, and, facing him, with her eyes alight with anger, exclaimed, 'How dare you touch me! You, who have at last confessed to the evil you wrought. I knew it was you. Did I not accuse you of it? But,' she paused, and a dreary look stole over her face, 'you have failed after all, for Frank is coming back home.'

As she finished, the last flickering spark of sanity died out of Sidney's brain, and once again, ere she could evade him or was aware of his intention, he seized her in his arms, saying, 'He shall never have you; you are mine. We'll die together,' and as her piercing shrieks for help rang out he stood upon the mast and with her in his arms plunged headlong into the water.

Autumn's rare loveliness was all around, a feast of color to beauty-loving eyes, from rosy-red fruit, bearing blights down to the very ground, to foliage in every shade, from palest gold through gradations of bronze, russet, copper, to deepest crimson and vermilion, and the sky repeated the tints in a flaming voluptuous sunset.

Eva was in the orchard by the creek whose waters shone redly in reflection of the sky. She was pale, though lovelier than ever, for she had not quite recovered from the shock of the ordeal she had undergone. She had gone very, very near to the 'eternal here'—in that mad plunge with Sidney Lowe; she had only been rescued in time, and Sidney—so everyone believed—had gone down. The police and several relays of volunteers had spent days in a fruitless search for his body and gave it up only when there existed no room for doubt that the swift currents had disposed of his corpse in some locality far away from the scene of the attempted tragedy.

It was all very awful, and the horror of it had, with her immersion and shock, made her ill for some weeks. For poor Sidney she had nothing but a deep pity, and a hope that forgiveness might be his, inasmuch as he could not have been responsible for his actions.

As she sat there she was thinking of it all, but now chiefly of Frank, for he was expected home any day. He had written a hurried letter before he sailed to tell her of his coming. He knew everything, he said, for he had heard from his agent, who had told him all. The secret of Eva's authorship had at last leaked out, and the tragedy of Sidney's supposed death and Eva's narrow escape was in the papers which Frank had seen.

Never had time seemed to drag so for Frank as on that voyage home, for he was consumed with the desire to see the face of her whom he now loved with tenfold intensity.

As Eva mused with the sunset glow on her face, she saw Frank coming swiftly down the orchard avenue towards her, and in another moment he was standing before her. Neither uttered a word for a few seconds as they gazed into each other's eyes. Then Frank spoke.

'Eva,' he said softly, 'Eva at last! Oh, the weary time it has been without you all these years! But can you ever forgive me for doubting your love and leaving you as I did?'

She held out her hand, and looking up at him, he read his answer in her eyes. 'My dear one, my own once more,' he murmured, as he gathered her in his arms and rained kisses on her face.

Presently he whispered, 'Kiss me, my dear one, and tell me you forgive me, and still love me,' and she shyly obeyed him, lying in his arms. Heaven seemed to open its gates to them, and the past was obliterated in the bliss that was theirs.

'But,' he began after a long pause, 'I have so much to tell you. You will never know all that your books and letters have done for me; they gave me back my faith in woman, and, more than that, my belief in my Maker,' he added, reverently, 'which I had abandoned with all else in my misery. Above all, did you not save my life when in that moment of madness I was about to take it? How can I ever repay you? A lifetime will be too short. But, tell me, how went on, how was it you were so able to influence me, and call me as you did?'

'By the power of my love,' answered Eva, softly. 'I knew and felt, with Tennyson, that "Spirit with spirit may speak." I am sure that true love has the power of clairvoyance and telepathy; that it enables the spirit to hold communion with a kindred spirit, in spite of space or time or the bonds of the flesh, for is not love a spark of the divine and immortal in us? So I believe that the "Spirit knows no bounds nor bars. On it no shroud of thralldom hangs."

For all answer his arms tightened round her, and, crying her to his heart, their lips met in a lingering kiss that 'caught up the whole of love and uttered it.'

Plenty of food for gossip was afforded the squire's at homes in Frank's return, Eva's authorship, Sidney Lowe's supposed tragic end, and Eva and Perry's wedding, which took place within a month of his return, but Mrs. Hobkirk was very subdued. Possibly the fact that her name was omitted from the list of guests at the wedding had something to do with it, for Mrs. Dalton had neither forgiven nor forgotten her spite in the past.

The honeymoon was spent in England, where Eva was feted and honored as a literary celebrity, and was the guest of the evening at a dinner given in her honor by the Women Writers' Club. Many inducements were offered them to settle in London, but they were unavailing, for they set their faces homeward to the land of their birth, romantic Manitoba, where, I am told, they lived happily and prosperously till advancing years and odd weather forced them to seek a more genial clime on the Pacific coast, and a salubrious coast of the Pacific Ocean.

There is a somewhat curious idea entertained in many parts of the world to the effect that the average lawyer is the mole and indiscriminate property of his Satan's Muckety—hence the stereotyped custom of speaking of individual lawyers as "One of the Devil's own." Whether or not 'the devil looked after his own' in the case of Sidney Lowe, when he had taken that determined plunge with Eva into the water, is not known, but it is known that he never escaped from the watery grave which every one, for years after the occurrence, believed him to possess, and made his way to some hamlet on the western side of the Rocky mountains, where, when last heard of, he was eking out that precarious existence which, not infrequently, marks the declining days of evil doers.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

Baby's Own Tablets is the one medicine that can be given little ones with the firm knowledge that nothing but good will result. The Tablets are sold under the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate nor any other drug which will harm the youngest child—they cannot possibly do harm; they always do good, and once a mother has used them she will never again give her little ones castor oil or the "soothing" stuffs which simply drug baby into temporary relief and in the end do harm.

Mrs. Phillips, Frampton, Que., writes: 'Send me two more boxes of Baby's Own Tablets. I have used them for constipation and have always found them very good. My baby is certainly progressing under the Tablets.' The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CORONATION DAY
FETE IS PLANNED

Government Grant of $2,000
— Official Programme
Adopted Last Night

The Daughters of Empire last night finally adopted a set programme for the Coronation Day celebration on June 22 at a meeting of those interested, held in the Friends' hall. Very Rev. Dean Doull occupied the chair and had the support of Mrs. Henry Croft, the regent of the Daughters of Empire, Mrs. Hasell and Mrs. F. B. Pemberton. The programme adopted was embodied in a report read, as follows:

"Your committee appointed by the Daughters of Empire at the request of a public meeting held a week ago, to formulate plans for the celebration of the coronation of His Majesty, King George V., and to carry the same into effect, beg to report as follows:

"That several meetings have been held to determine what form this celebration should take in order to fittingly commemorate this auspicious and historic occasion, with the result that the following programme is submitted for your approval:

"First, the school children from all the schools in the city will proceed from their different schools to the parliament buildings, and will be there massed by eleven a. m. They will engage in various exercises and render patriotic songs until the time for the official and formal reading of the coronation proclamation by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, which will take place exactly at noon.

"The governor will be accompanied by the members of the cabinet and legislature, and the officers and men of the army, navy and auxiliary forces.

"In the afternoon there will be a monster procession in which will be included a large number of patriotic and other floats arranged by the different friendly, patriotic and kindred societies, representing various stages in the history of the province, and also Imperial, Canadian and provincial subjects. It is suggested that this procession assemble at a convenient point within the city, proceed through the principal streets and thence to Beacon Hill park, where they will pass a saluting point, and from there proceed once around the hill and disperse.

"In the evening a gigantic summer street carnival (similar to those held in Southern California) will be held, consisting of decorated and illuminated autos, carriages and other vehicles to proceed through the principal streets, driving back and forth before the Empress hotel and parliament buildings, and finally disperse along Belleville street.

"The provincial government will be asked to allow the platform which is to be used for the formal ceremonies in the morning to be used for the evening entertainment.

"The Daughters of Empire will be specially requested to prepare a series of tableaux vivants to be presented on this platform after the procession has dispersed.

"The Canadian Pacific railway may also be asked to allow a stage for similar purposes to be erected in front of the Empress hotel, and the government and that company will be asked to illuminate the buildings and grounds as far as possible.

"At the conclusion of the programme on the two platforms there will be an illumination of the harbor and a procession of illuminated boats, winding up with the lighting of bonfires in various beacon points all around the city.

"The meeting decided that a management committee will be finally drafted to-day. Members of several societies were present and announced that their societies were willing to be represented in the processions. W. H. Price and H. Cuthbert were appointed secretaries, and information on procession floats can be had at the office of the latter.

Mrs. Croft, Mrs. Hasell and Mrs. Pemberton were appointed a committee on decoration and historical floats. They will have the assistance of members of societies and the intention is to make the festivities in keeping with the importance of the occasion.

Government aid has been given. At a special meeting of the provincial executive yesterday a deputation of the Daughters of Empire saw Acting Premier Young and his colleagues. They announced the cost of the celebration would be $12,500, and asked the government to assist. The acting premier replied that $2,000 would be donated for celebration purposes.

DALLAS SEA WALL

CAUSES TROUBLE

Claimed That Both the Wall and the Government Engineer Are Unsuitable

CONTRACT AWARDED; PROTEST IGNORED

Considerable trouble seems to be fermenting in connection with the Dallas Road sea wall construction. The provincial government's plan has been condemned by several experts as not suited to the purpose, and now the provincial government's engineer is being catalogued with the wall. It is claimed that the wall is a retaining wall and not a sea wall and that the engineer is an electrical and not a construction engineer. The Pacific Coast Construction Co., which is building the wall, is, of course, building it according to the plans and specifications.

The trouble was aired in the council chamber last night at the meeting of the board of works. Alderman Langley suggested that since there had been so many complaints the matter was deserving of the attention of the council. Personally he did not know whether there were too many bosses on the work or not, but he certainly thought the matter should be inquired into. It was a work which meant a government authorities. In addition to that the provincial government appointed A. E. Foreman engineer for the work. He is the official road whom the trouble seems to surge, and it is his qualifications for the supervision of the work on hand that the committee will be called upon to consider.

VICTORIA LITERARY SOCIETY.

Season's Work of Long-Established and Flourishing Body.

The Victoria Literary Society held its last meeting this season at the home of Mrs. R. B. McMicking, Kingston street. The secretary read the yearly report, which was as follows: Shakespearean plays studied, Julius Caesar, King Lear and Much Ado About Nothing. In addition to these, the list included the poetical works of Hood and Pope, "The Master of Ballantrae," by R. L. Stevenson; "The Vicar of Wakefield," by Oliver Goldsmith; "Cranford," by Mrs. Gaskell; "Sartor Resartus," by Thos. Carlyle; Addison's Essays; "Lorna Doone," by R. D. Blackmore; "Diana of the Crossways," by George Meredith; "Les Misérables," by Victor Hugo.

In the study of these authors biographical sketches and reviews have been written by the members of the society for one of the most stringent rules relates to the work to be done by each for the good of all. The meetings are held fortnightly, and the course of study arranged at the beginning of the season by a specially selected committee. The society aims at improving its knowledge of the really fine literature. Members are not supposed to limit their study of authors selected to merely what is required by the rules of the society. It is a club of reading people, who share with each other the good things they find in the works of these great ones.

LOCAL NEWS

A copy of a recent issue of The Tidings, a Catholic weekly published in Los Angeles, which has reached the Times Office contains the following flattering reference to a well-known citizen of Victoria: "Among the many eloquent tributes to the memory of Ireland's national apostle, and glowing eulogies of the character and achievements of his sons, contained in newspaper accounts of the recent celebration of the Irish national festival that have reached us from the many parts of the continent, there is one deserving of more than passing mention, as well for the genuine ring of the sentiments it expresses as for the unexpected quarter from which it reaches us. When the Irishmen of the City of Victoria, British Columbia, selected Dr. J. J. Murlagh at St. Patrick's night banquet, at which all creeds sat together round the board, they chose one whose handling of the topic was both an evidence of uncommon ability in the speaker and a reply well worthy of the patriotic theme that inspired his eloquence. The friends in Southern California of the brilliant speaker of that occasion are delighted to find that he was the one chosen to hear eloquent tribute to the greatness and glory of Erin on her national festival and that the task was so well discharged."

At Victoria West Methodist church to-morrow, Rev. James A. Wood's subject in the morning will be "Hearing and Observing Christ," and in the evening, "Joseph of Arimathea." At the close of the evening service there will be a reception of the members, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. On Monday evening the Epworth League will meet in the Social and Library department, under the leadership of Miss Eva Brown, and will spend "An hour with Canadian Authors."

The newly organized Western Star Amateur Dramatic Society have elected the following officers: President, A. E. Cave; vice-president, Miss Freda Hasenfratz; secretary, Mrs. E. L. Lawrie; assistant secretary, Miss Ivy Lawrie; treasurer and stage manager, A. W. Temple; assistant stage manager and electrician, H. Hasenfratz; business manager, A. J. Clunk; property man, E. L. Lawrie. The society hopes to appear before the public in the near future.

In Centennial Methodist church Gorge road, to-morrow, Rev. J. W. Williamson, General Secretary of the B. C. Sunday School association, will preach at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., and will address the children of the Sunday school and Adult Bible Classes at 2:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the church. In the morning his subject will be adapted to the Sunday school teachers, in the afternoon to scholars and in the evening to the Adult Bible classes.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon the steamer Tees, Capt. Gilliam, arrived in port from Clayoquot. She brought a large number of passengers and considerable freight, and reports a fair passage. She leaves again to-morrow night for Holberg and way ports.

CANNON'S ATTACK ON RECIPROCITY

Former Speaker Declares That Taft's Recent Speech Was Fine Piece of Humor

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Former Speaker Cannon again to-day took the floor in an attack on the reciprocity bill and the free list bill. After Representative Culler of Mississippi, and Carter of Oklahoma, had spoken in favor of the free list bill, Mr. Cannon referred to it as the "Balm of Gilead" offered by the Democrats to the farmers because of the passage of the Canadian reciprocity bill. Then dissecting the measure, he endeavored to show that its benefits would not be important.

Mr. Cannon demanded to know why the cattle, rice and other products of the south had not been put on the free list bill when these products of the northern farmer had been deprived of protection by the reciprocity measure. Renewing an attack on reciprocity, Mr. Cannon said: "I believe this secret agreement never would have been made if it had not been demanded by the great publishing interests of the country."

President Taft's speech at the publishers' banquet in New York, he said, "was a fine piece of humor, beating anything of Clemens." In it the president urged the publishers to be "constant" in favoring the reciprocity bill without amendment.

Mr. Cannon also referred to the Associated Press as a syndicate, saying that it was made up of publishers, and that in turn the publishers made up the Associated Press. He declared that it was a great organization and that he would not "kill it if he could." "I lost my temper over the reciprocity bill," said Mr. Cannon. "I felt that those who represent two-thirds of the people were willing to sacrifice the others to answer the hysterical cry raised by the demagogues, the Democrats and newspapers."

IMPORTANT FURNITURE SALE.

A public auction, rarely paralleled in Victoria for the quality of goods sold, will take place on Tuesday morning at the residence of R. Dunn, East Saanich road, ten minutes' walk from the end of the Douglas Street car.

Mr. Dunn is selling some very handsome solid oak dining room furniture, antique and costly drawing room furniture, including a "Baby" Grand piano, satin wood and mahogany. There are several handsome bedroom suites, mahogany inlaid with satin wood. Besides there is, of course, a great number of smaller articles and valuable knick-knacks of all kinds, to be disposed of. All of Mr. Dunn's furniture is by Waring & Gillow, London, after Sheraton and others.

Cards to view the furniture can be obtained from the auctioneer, Stewart Williams, 627 Fort street. The sale will commence at 2:30 sharp.

INSPECTING CAMPS ON NEW RAILWAYS

Member of Dominion Public Health Service Will Make Detailed Report

Vancouver, May 6.—Acting under instructions from Dr. Montizambert of the Dominion quarantine and public health service, Ottawa, Dr. A. E. Clendenan, a member of the staff with headquarters at Edmonton, has been dispatched to British Columbia to inspect the camps and contractors' hospitals on all railway lines now under construction.

The visitor left here yesterday for Victoria to go over the Canadian Northern line camps on Vancouver Island. He has instructions to make a detailed report of the health of all railway laborers.

During the past week Dr. Clendenan, accompanied by Dr. MacKenzie, chief medical officer of the Canadian Northern on the mainland, went on a tour of inspection over the route between Fort Mann and Hope and found everything very satisfactory.

After concluding his duties here the inspector will go north to perform similar work in the long string of construction camps on the Grand Trunk Pacific railway between Kettle Lake and Aldermere, in Bulkley Valley. He will also inspect the various hospitals which are in charge of Dr. Ewing of this city.

Mrs. McMicking had chosen for this closing evening a very clever and ingenious programme which was much appreciated by all. Preceding this, Ernest McGaffey, by special request, read a charming paper on "Lilies," which might be aptly described as a poet's dream.

The minutes of the first meeting of this society, written over sixteen years ago, were produced and excited much interest. Four of the original members were present, Ven. Archdeacon and Mrs. Scriven, Mrs. McMicking and Rev. J. H. S. Sweet. The society expressed its gratitude to these for the part they had played in the history, and for their share in the management that had made this long-established literary society as vigorous and successful now as in the days of its youth.

Building permits were issued yesterday to Frederick Caselton for additions to dwelling on Meads street to cost $299; to W. H. Holloway, dwelling on Edmonton road, $1,950; to J. Pyke, dwelling on Avebury avenue, $1,800; to Alexander Hendry, stable on Gladstone avenue, $250; to C. J. Lidge, dwelling on Crescent road, $1,850.

The death occurred on April 5, at the family residence, Easton Gardens, Ealing, Middlesex, Eng., of Colonel T. Bernard Michel, brother of Mrs. Spait, Stanley avenue, Victoria, and of the late Mrs. Robertson, Duncan. Deceased was formerly of the 90th Regiment and Bengal staff corps, and also commissioner at Nowgong, India.

Eczema Cure a Beauty Wash

Although D. D. D. Prescription has been recognized for years as the one remedy for Eczema, Psoriasis, and all other forms of skin diseases, it is now known that there is no other wash, even those used by the heavy specialists, that can compare with this mild liquid for cleansing the skin of pimples, blackheads, rash, and all similar skin affections.

For this reason alone, a bottle of D. D. D. should be kept on hand in every household. A free trial bottle will show you the merits of this great remedy as a complexion wash.

D. D. D. seems to remove the cause, whatever the trouble may be, cleansing the skin, and leaving it as soft, as smooth and clear as that of a healthy child.

Write the D. D. D. Laboratories, Dept. V. T., 48 Colborne St., Toronto, and prove its wonderful effectiveness.

TEACHING CHINESE

TO FIGHT DISEASE

Mongolians Receive Popular Instruction in Microbe Theory of Distempers

Dr. E. L. Marsh delivered the following interesting lecture at the Chinese Y. M. C. A. in Singapore on "Microbes and Their Relation to Disease": I desire to tell you to-night something about that large family of minute living organisms, whose representatives are everywhere to be found, and among whom are the greatest enemies of health and life—those germs or microbes which are one of the disease-producing agencies of human life. As this is too large a subject to be dealt with in the limits of a single lecture I intend to confine my remarks to facts about germs which are responsible for the most common infectious or communicable diseases. What I have to tell you is very intimately connected with your welfare as individuals, and your interests as citizens of this city, and in fact, of the world. For human interest in the face of communicable diseases has in recent times asserted itself far beyond the submerging of the individual. Nations have learnt that organization, to be equal to the task of successfully resisting the inroads of such diseases as plague, cholera, small-pox and tuberculosis, must embrace not only local authorities within nations, but nations themselves. We are witnesses at the present time of how the same powerful agency is bringing nations into negotiation at Mukden, where representatives appointed by various governments are about to hold a plague conference. This large country of China, under whose rule conditions favorable to plague and other communicable diseases exist, is made to feel her responsibility to all the world and to recognize that it is by international co-operation in measures for the prevention of disease at its point of origin that, step by step, the final end of the existence of communicable diseases is being worked out.

In the lecture by Dr. Stanley your attention was called to the disease known as plague. Dr. Stanley impressed on your minds how plague was a communicable disease, which in its pneumonic or lung form is directly transmissible by the air from a sick person to another person, while in its bubonic or gland form its transmission is mostly indirect by the agency of fleas which have come from plague infected rats. We know now that what is transmitted from the person or rat suffering from plague is a minute form of living organism—the plague germ. We also know that like the germs of cholera and typhoid fever and the great majority of germs that cause communicable diseases, the plague germ grows best where there is want of cleanliness, overcrowding and general wretchedness and misery in the homes of people.

I want you to appreciate that the germs of disease are real living organisms. They are so small that it is only possible to see them by the aid of the magnifying lenses of a microscope. Imagine for a moment each character or letter on a printed page divided into a thousand living moving parts, and you will get some idea of the minute size and variety of shapes of these microscopic forms of life. Now one of the necessities of all living things is food, and unfortunately for us, many of these minute germs get their food by living for a time in the human body. They live as parasites in us, where they produce poisons which cause disturbances of our health and disease. It is because these minute organisms produce such murderous diseases, besides which the loss through the blood-let of wars appears to be insignificant, small, that men spend so much time and money to understand and control their causes.

Now the most important of the communicable diseases which exist in our midst are small-pox, cholera, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis. Let us first take small-pox. Its germs are universal in their distribution. Wherever small-pox reaches a susceptible population there it becomes epidemic. All ranks, ages and conditions of men, women, the rich, the poor, the learned, the ignorant. The infection may be carried great distance by persons and by things. It acknowledges no control but that of compulsory vaccination and re-vaccination, to which, however, happily it yields complete submission. As to cholera we know that there is no limit to the power of diffusion of cholera germs over the globe from the tropics in extreme polar latitudes. Cholera always exists in parts of Asia, lives there, so to speak, and thence makes periodic invasions over the world. Wherever there is filth, and especially human excremental uncleanness, there cholera thrives and derives all its epidemic destructiveness. Scarlet fever is the most fatal to life of the communicable diseases in England, where it kills yearly, on the average, about 20,000 persons, chiefly children not exceeding ten years of age. It is but scantily diffused in this country up to the present. Its germs are independent of climate, season, weather and influences of locality. Whenever they establish themselves in a place their subsequent spread is far reaching and subtle, especially in populous places. In this disease the safety of all classes is especially involved by individual and public ignorance and carelessness. In diphtheria the history is not one of continuous propagation by its germs like small-pox and scarlet fever. Cases are met with where no human source of infection can be traced. The great majority of cases occur in children under ten years of age. Dampness of houses or of soil, and the crowding of children in a close manner in schools are conditions under which its germs often exist.

Typhoid fever is a disease which exists universally. Its germs originate everywhere in fecal matter. They can live in fresh and salt water, in shell fish such as oysters, and in milk and butter. The virulence of the germs is favored by stagnation of the water in which they are present, by warmth and by absence of sunlight and fresh air. Thus a hot summer which favors stagnation in the sewers is apt to be followed by an autumnal outbreak of typhoid fever in large towns and villages where a certain amount of typhoid infection is always present in the drains. Infection takes place through swallowing the germs which leave the sick person by the feces and urine. The germs may be swallowed in water contaminated by sewerage from a case of the disease, but in hot climates dust takes the place of water for this purpose. Vegetables which are eaten raw may be contaminated and so spread the disease. Flies may convey the germs from typhoid stools to food. Sometimes infected gas from a drain which has received the urine, feces, or washings from the soiled bedclothes of the patient may carry the germs to the food or drink of the healthy.

Tuberculosis.—The infective agent here is the well known tubercle bacillus. The conditions favorable to this germ both among men and among animals are imperfect ventilation, dampness, dark enclosures, and absence of direct sunlight. It is obvious how, under the circumstances of life as commonly lived in the walls-in houses in this country, the occupants are particularly exposed to harm even in the best houses and among the well-to-do classes, from the artificially created atmosphere in which they too generally live. The lungs supplied with poor and poisoned air gradually lose that aptitude of resistance to those alterations of temperature which occur in the ordinary progress of weather and season, and the time comes when a sudden change, a foretime unheeded and harmless, interferes with the action of the breathing apparatus, and brings about the state known as congestion which is favorable to the tubercle bacillus and its disease called consumption. You can understand from what has been said that patients who suffer from any of these diseases are a source of great danger to others. They discharge large numbers of the germs of the disease by the breath or by the bowels, and these discharged germs infect other persons by getting entrance through the breathing passages, the food canal, the skin, or they may attach themselves to soiled articles, and be then transported independently of the sick man, and by the capacity of being able to multiply outside the human body they contaminate food, drink, or air and be conveyed by them once more to the human body. Moreover flies and other insects are apt to carry the germs of these diseases from place to place. Now this is the reason why communicable diseases are seldom nursed at home with the care they require. It is impossible in a small private house to set aside a room for the patient's isolation, and it is seldom that proper precautions are taken to isolate the sick person from the healthy so that the sick person's discharges are destroyed and kept from the flies, and portions of food and drink left by him are not swallowed by others. It is a great weariness to a person to be confined, for instance as in smallpox, for six weeks to the same room. Besides it requires a considerable amount of nursing skill to help the patient through his illness with the best chance to himself. Nursing also demands an amount of self-control on the part of the nurses which is more difficult to exercise on the part of friends. Therefore you can understand why one of the chief and best methods by which communicable diseases are combatted is the provision of hospitals for the care and treatment of the sick.

It is only when hospitals for the isolation of the infectious sick are systematically taken advantage of that real success attends measures of isolation. You have hospitals for this purpose in Shanghai which you can be justly proud of. From my own experience I can truly say that the majority of patients leave such well-appointed hospitals not only cured of their diseases but in better general health than when they entered them. Another good and certain method of saving yourself and your family from falling victim to these diseases is to have the house in order. The germs of cholera, typhoid fever and plague all positively live upon gross and palpable dirt, and wherever they sustain themselves there will filth be found most gross and palpable, and from thence they may be exterminated by the removal of that filth. Even those communicable diseases such as small-pox, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, and diphtheria, which can scarcely be said to live entirely upon uncleanness, but attack men, are all aggravated thereby. Their tendency to spread is increased and their fatality heightened. It is astonishing how much is often done by the occupier of a house to render the inmates victims of his dwelling-place unwholesome and favorable to the development of preventable disease. In how many cases is it the prevailing custom to throw all refuse immediately outside the door, so that a heap of decomposing matter of filth and remains to give off injurious smells and organisms into the air?

Remember therefore that it pays to be clean and healthy. If your house is damp, dark, and badly ventilated it is disaffected with it and get a more habitable one. The buyer makes the market. So long as there are tenants for unhealthy houses, there will be unhealthy houses to be had. Your house is, or ought to be, your idea expressed in wood or brick, of a structure designed for healthful occupation. With regard then to this matter of communicable diseases I would impress upon you strongly to help yourself, and to aid those whose business it is to look after the laws of health of this city. It is for public advantage that the laws should be definite and comprehensive so that public safety may be assured, and, in addition, each individual person has the advantage of knowing that he is a citizen of a town where there is an efficient organization to help him, and to provide for him the proper conditions and appliances of health, such as a pure water supply, good drainage, epidemic hospitals, disinfecting apparatus, and besides this to carry out the daily operations that are necessary to keep the town clean outside and inside the house of the inhabitants.

Is Attracting a Great Deal of Attention

The fact that so beautiful a site for modern homes remained untouched for years is difficult to understand. As a matter of fact it was held in large tracts and was not available to the ordinary purchaser.

There are fine oak trees on some of the lots, there is rock on others, while a few are nothing but meadow covered with buttercups. There are a few small pieces of acreage and some larger than ordinary lots. The view from the property is something that cannot be described. The Olympic Mountains, Mount Baker, the Straits, Mount Douglas and Mount Tolmie are in full view from the higher points.

Anyone desiring a site of which they can be proud should choose before the best are gone.

BOILERMAKERS MAY STRIKE.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—A strike of all the boilermakers and helpers on the Rock Island Lines is threatened, according to a letter received here by Thomas King, local business agent of the boilermakers' union. The strike will effect about 2,000 men, it is said. The boilermakers now have 2,000 men out on the New York Central and 3,200 on the Pennsylvania and the warning is sent to eastern lodges to keep them away from the west. A strike vote has been taken on the Rock Island, according to the information received by Mr. King and about 89 per cent of the men voted to walk out on May 8 if the officials of the road did not meet their demands which relates to the payment of wages and to the chairman of the Rock Island grievance committee who has been suspended.

WORSE THAN CENSUS.

Montreal, May 5.—Three years ago an act was placed on the Quebec statute books making it necessary for any man entering business to make a declaration as to the terms of his marriage contract, if any, or to state otherwise.

The act apparently passed unnoticed until a few days ago, when a number of actions were entered, and one man, member of a prominent fruit-importing firm, was mulcted $100 and costs, amounting to $160 in all, for a breach of the law.

The informer gets half the fine, and many actions are anticipated.

CAPTAIN FOUND DEAD ON LINER.

Hoboken, N. J., May 5.—Captain H. Langreuter of the North German Lloyd Steamship Berlin was found dead yesterday in his cabin on board the steamer at her dock here. When the Berlin came in on Tuesday, Captain Langreuter was apparently in his usual health.

NOW IT IS THE CAT.

Warning That Croupy Cough May Be Premontion of Diphtheria.

Health Commissioner Fronczak of Buffalo, has been informed by City Bacteriologist Bessett that the cat whose throat was cultured recently following the development of two cases of diphtheria in the family in which it was a house pet, is suffering from the disease in a most malignant form.

Dr. Fronczak immediately notified the pound and ordered the city scavenger to get the animal. The owner did not raise any objection to such a disposition of the feline and was satisfied, even glad, to part with it, providing it met a humane death.

The health commissioner invoked that section of the charter which empowers him to kill animals in such cases, believing that the lives of other members of the family might be endangered if it were permitted to live and be fondled by the children, who contracted the disease by petting it.

The attention of the health department was brought to the cat when two children in a front avenue family were stricken with diphtheria after playing with it. The family pet then went to a house in Jersey street and there infected another child. It returned to its own home and again carried the germs to a third child.

When the three cases broke out Health Commissioner Fronczak became certain that the cat was at the seat of the trouble and ordered a culture of its throat taken, to remove the possibility of doubt as to the cause of the disease.

TO BOOST THE ISLAND IN FAR AUSTRALIA

Scheme to Exhibit Photographs of Victoria and Vancouver Island

That Ladysmith is experiencing an expensive movement is made very apparent by a letter received at the office of the local branch of the Vancouver Island-Development League. It states that during the present year there has been something like 2,000 acres of land sold in five and ten-acre blocks.

That is significant enough in itself, but it becomes even more significant when it is accompanied by the fact that many of those taking up the land are people whose names were sent to the secretary of the league in Victoria by the secretary of the local branch immediately on their arrival in this country. Ladysmith and the surrounding district was recommended to them as particularly suited to their vocation, and the best tribute to the correctness and adaptability of that district to the requirements of these people is thus furnished by them taking up the land for cultivation.

Another matter in which the local branch of the league is deeply interested is the exhibition of a series of photographs representative of the city of Victoria and the various industrial and agricultural points on the island in the leading offices of the cities of Great Britain and Australia.

In connection with this proposition a suggestion has come from an Australian to the effect that two frames, each holding views of a distinct class should be sent. One of them should be devoted to displaying the charms of city life, the architectural and industrial features, and the other to the display of the agricultural, horticultural and country life on Vancouver Island. The writer affirms that once these photographs have been sufficiently exhibited they could easily find a permanent resting place in one or other of the leading offices of Melbourne or Sydney. With a small card admitted to each frame it would be possible to identify the Development League as the source of any information that they might elicit.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

Anniversary Celebration of Triumph
Lodge at Esquimalt.

The twenty-fourth anniversary of Triumph Lodge, No. 16, International Order of Good Templars, was celebrated on Thursday evening at the Esquimalts' and Sailors' Home, Esquimalt, by a supper, to which about 50 sat down, followed by a concert, presided over by Rev. C. M. Tate, Grand Chief Templar.
The seating capacity of the hall was taxed to the utmost during the progress of the concert.

The proceedings were opened by the singing of the Good Templars' opening ode by the audience, after which the Grand Chief Templar briefly drew attention to the origin of the lodge on May 2, 1887, the charter being granted by the Grand Lodge of England and United Services, the lodge being instituted mainly for the benefit of the sailors of the Imperial navy at Esquimalts.

Later in the evening a short, stirring address was given by Rev. Dr. Speercer, local official superintendent for British Columbia.

Pianoforte solos were rendered in a brilliant manner by Miss Harcourt and vocal solos by the following ladies and gentlemen, all of whom were well received by the audience: Mrs. Partleton, Mrs. Hicks, Rev. W. Baugh Allen, E. Wilkinson and H. Merry, while Rev.
T. W. Gladstone delivered two recitations in a pleasing manner, and A.
Arrow and T. Watling rendered delightful music on the mandolin. But the honors of the evening were equally divided between the twelve girls of Conqueror Juvenile Temple, in their exhibition of fancy marching, and the two sailor boys of H.M.S. Rainbow in their hornpipe dance. The twelve girls, who were put through their evolutions
by Grand Superintendent W. H. Booth, were all dressed in white and carried green wands with orange pennants, forming a very pleasing picture, and the manner especially of their wheeling in fours was worthy of army veterans.

Votes of thanks to the artists and chairman, followed by the singing of the doxology and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. W. Baugh Allen, brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

The credit for the success of the event is due to the following members of the committee: W. H. Booth, who arranged and prepared almost the entire programme, and was warmly thanked by the audience, and Mes-sieurs Filler, Parkinson and Nicholson, who, with inspiring effort, provided such a delightful repast.

UNWARRANTED ACT.

Issue of Capias Against Victoria Citizen Uncalled For.

The sequel of a capias proceeding which occasioned some surprise last July has been reached in the judgment rendered by Mr. Justice Clement in the case of McNair & Skeans against
W. B. Garrard and A. G. Howard Potts.
Judgment was given in favor of Messrs. Garrard & Potts in the action, and in favor of Mr. Garrard on his counter claim.

This was a case in which the plaintiffs alleged that they had over-paid Messrs. Garrard & Potts the sum of $1340 in connection with a timber deal. In July last, a capias was issued against Mr. Garrard as he was on the point of leaving for England. The capias was set aside by order of Mr.
Justice Murphy, and the result of the trial shows that there was no money owing to McNair & Skeans by W. B.
Garrard or his associate A. G. H. Potts and that there was no right to issue the capias. Mr. Garrard obtained judgment on his counter claim against McNair & Skeans for $125 and costs.
E. V. Bodwell, K. C., and C. M.
O'Brien appeared for McNair & Skeans and Harold B. Robertson for Garrard & Potts.

GIVEN YEAR IN PRISON.

Prince Rupert, May 5.—John Mosca, the Italian who shot a countryman in a row on Third Avenue some time ago, was found guilty by Judge Young and sentenced to one year's imprisonment at New Westminster.

WHAT DO YOU REQUIRE FOR THE SUMMER TIME?

One of the greatest questions of to-day is: What do I need most this Summer? Or, perhaps the greatest question is: Where shall I buy my Summer furnishings? Well, we are ready for you here with the finest variety of useful things for the Summer, either for your town or country home. We know of no other store in the West that is better equipped with Summer furnishings. This is THE house furnishing store. Our only business is the furnishing of Homes, Hotels, Clubs, Boats, etc. We give just as careful attention to our selection of the summer furnishings as we do in the rest of our business. By giving these goods a careful inspection, you will see that we have been giving your Summer necessities careful attention. No matter what your Summer requirements in Home Furnishings are, you'll satisfy them from this stock of ours.

We want you to give us a trial this Summer.

STYLISH HAMMOCKS FROM $1.75

The ceiling of our second floor will attract your attention with the many beautiful colors which are hung there in displaying our magnificent new stock of Summer Hammocks. These are all hung ready for your inspection, and the prices are marked in plain figures. There is nothing more delightful on a balmy Summer day than to rest in one of these hammocks stretched below a leafy tree or hung from the posts of a shady verandah. If you do not possess a hammock, you had better come in here and choose one. Try it this Summer and learn what real comfort is. You will never be without one during another Summer season.

We have a big stock and a great variety of styles at reasonable prices. The cost is nothing, for we have them from $1.75.

HAMMOCKS for the children from .....$1.50

Are You Fly Enough For the Flies? We Are

Have you noticed a few flies in your home already? Yes! Well, you'll notice a great deal more before the Summer is over. The little fly is not only annoying, but it is dangerous. As we all know, they carry disease. Therefore, if it be only to have comfort alone, you must find some way of keeping these little pests out of your home this summer. We can do

"SUMMER" COMFORT CHAIRS

"Some Are" Not—These Are in Reed, Rush and Linen Smart Styles

These Chairs in Reed, Rush and Linen are most inviting for the Summer. They are cool and comfortable and handsome. In many designs for the lawn or porch these cannot be equalled. One good feature about these chairs—and they are many—is the fact that after having enjoyed them all the Summer, you can put them into any room in your home and they will add to its beauty and comfort.
These chairs are made to last, and they are furniture that you cannot equal in price. We are convinced that if you buy one or two now and try them that by the end of the Summer you will have half a dozen. Why not get one every month in the Summer? The cost is little, and you are always furnishing your home. The money will go on something else not half as good. We have a good variety of Arm Chairs, Arm Rockers, Extension or Lounging Chairs, etc. We want you to inspect these remarkable goods to-day.

THE FINEST SUMMER INVESTMENT You Can't Do Better Than to Get One of These Refrigerators From $12

No, you can't tell us, because we know that there is not a better investment at the present time in this city than a "Refrigerator." Put all of your perishable eatables in one of our refrigerators and you will have everything nice, fresh and cool for every meal. The first cost of a refrigerator is all, and that pays for itself at the end of the year. Of course there are refrigerators that are for sale that cost more to feed them with ice in a month than the price of the article itself. WE DO NOT STOCK THESE ONES. You'll find our refrigerators most economical in the matter of ice consumption. The most saving of all makes. Come in and see the famous ones. Prices start as low as $12.00.
